Big turnout for Ford in Northwest

Primary drive capped; economic recovery cited

by STEVE BROWN

President Ford capped a day of Chicago area campaigning Friday with a stunning appearance before 5,000 persons at Buffalo Grove High School, telling them he "wants to build a solid base for America and its future generations."

The President drew an enthusiastic reception from an overflow crowd that jammed both the gymnasium and a fieldhouse at the high school. He made brief remarks and answered questions from the audience in both areas for more than an hour.

The Buffalo Grove appearance ended the major part of a 40-hour blitz by Ford into Illinois before Tuesday's primary election. The President will wind up his Illinois campaign today with an 8 a.m. rally at the O'Hare Marriott Hotel.

THE PRESIDENT responded to questions from the crowd about the economy, detente, federal revenue-sharing and the pardon of former President Richard Nixon, but he was stumped by one young man who asked complicated questions about new environmental regulations for light trucks.

Ford drew applause for even that situation by asking his questioner to write him at the White House.

The President repeated his view that the economy is recovering from the recession.

Earlier in the day, Ford was critical of other Presidential candidates who are attempting to make the nation's foreign policy an issue in the primary campaign.

"I would hope, to the maximum degree possible, thate foreign policy will not be an emotional issue. I think it is an area where we can have responsible dialog, but if it becomes a deep devisive influence for the next six or nine months, I think it could be harmful as we try to achieve what we all want, which is peace and the same opportunities for others."

THE PRESIDENT'S comments on foreign policy were made during a speech to the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations. He outlined the major theory behind his new "peace with strength" position, which apparently has replaced detente in the administration vernacular.

Ford also answered a wide range of questions during a press conference before the Northern Illinois Newspaper Assn. prior to his appearance in the Northwest suburbs.

During that questioning, the President rejected a charge leveled by State Rep. Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, that the President's campaign was attempting to "buy votes in the primary election."

Totten charged the administration's announcement of federal projects in primary states just before elections amounted to an attempt to buy votes.

"I have never been too concerned about the charges made by an opponent in any one of the 14 campaigns that are leveled in a political atmosphere. I just don't think it is constructive to respond to political charges in the heat of a campaign," Ford said.

DURING THE course of the day's campaigning, Ford repeated several times he strongly supports Sec. of State Henry Kissinger, who has come under attack from a number of political candidates.

"Dr. Kissinger can remain secretary of state as long as he wants," he said.

The President's wife, Betty, also came into the area Friday. She dedicated a building at the Lambs Inc. in Libertyville. She also received an award from the organization for her outstanding service to the field of mental health.'

The President told the Buffalo Grove crowd his wife has "undertaken a mission around the country.

"She is trying to get my votes up to her own popularity. If she does that, then I am sure we are bound to win," he said.

President, staffers see big victory

President Ford's staff and his Illinois campaign officials appeared at odds Friday as the days before the Illinois primary dwindled to four, but they were only quibbling over how big a victory the President will have.

Presidential Press Sec. Ron Nessen and Howard "Bo" Calloway, the President's national campaign manager, told Illinois supporters to temper their comments slightly of how big a victory the President will get next week.

Nessen told reporters predictions that the President will win Illinois 2-1 were "over enthusiastic."

However, former Illinois Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie responded to those suggestions by saying he will stick to his predictions.

Ogilvie, who is managing Ford's Illinois campaign, has been predicting the President will get 80 per cent of the Republican delegates to be elected in the state.

He told the crowd at Buffalo Grove High School that he was "bullish on the President. I predict he will do very, very well in Illinois."

Tornados kill 1, injure scores in Friday tempest

by BILL HILL

A 25-year-old construction worker from Chicago was killed, scores of persons were injured and heavy property damage occurred Friday afternoon as tornados and high winds swept Chicago's suburbs.

A Skokie Valley Hospital spokesman said Raul Salascorpus was dead on arrival after being injured at the Reba Court construction site in Morton Grove.

The storm approached from the southwest at about 1:30 p.m., beginning its trail of destruction at Franklin Park and then continuing through Schiller Park, Park Ridge, Niles, Morton Grove and Skokie.

HEAVY INDUSTRIAL damage was reported in Schiller Park and shingles were torn from the roofs of homes there.

High court housing battle in April

The final battle over the proposed Lincoln Green low-income housing project in Arlington Heights will be staged before the U.S. Supreme Court in late April.

A spokesman for the Supreme Court said the case between the Village of Arlington Heights and the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp. (MHDC) will be scheduled for sometime between April 19 and 28, unless there is another request for it to be postponed.

If postponed, the case will be heard during the fall court session which begins in September.

THE CASE WAS to be heard in late March but has been set back a month because MHDC attorneys requested additional time to prepare the legal brief containing their arguments, which will be read by the nine judges in advance of the trial date.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel submitted his brief in February.

The Supreme Court's decision, when finally issued, will settle the 5-year-old housing battle in which Arlington Heights has blocked the 190-unit townhouse development proposed by the MHDC for 15 acres south of St. Viator High School.

The village's refusal to rezone the site from residential to multiple-family use was upheld by a U.S. District Court in 1972. But that decision was overturned in June 1975 by the 7th Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals, which ruled the rejection of the Lincoln Green proposal was racially discriminatory.

THE SUPREME COURT Dec. 16 agreed to review the case.

The Village of Arlington Heights will continue to insist it is only "maintaining the integrity of its zoning plan and protecting neighboring property values," according to the arguments filed by Siegel.

If the appellate court's ruling is allowed to stand, "no zoning ordinance in the United States will be sustained in the face of an argument that a higher percentage of a minority

America's busiest operators

They've got everybody's number

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It happens thousands of times every day. "Bleep . . . bleep" — the sound comes again and again over the headset, buttons come alive with lights, and a voice without a face asks for help.

"Directory assistance, may I help you?"

Estelle Crisafulli has asked that question more than a million times during her telephone company career. She, as much as any veteran telephone operator, knows the directory assistance service today is big business — sometimes a bit of fun, and often a challenge.

A 12-year directory assistance employe of Central Telephone Co., Des Plaines, Mrs. Crisafulli said, "It seems every day we get funny calls. But we always try to bend over backwards for the customer no matter what they ask for.

"ONCE, I GOT a call from a lady who asked me to find a telephone number for her friend, Mrs. Smith, in Chicago, who lived in a yellow house across the street from her cousin. First of all, do you know how many Smiths there are in Chicago? You can't find one without a first name or address." People sometimes don't understand.

Mrs. Crisafulli's experience on the "hot line" has taught her people speak more curtly and are more businesslike on Mondays. Maybe because they're returning from the weekend. But Friday, she said, the people seem more easygoing.

A day is not complete without a prank telephone call or a customer who challenges the operators when they are told the telephone number he wants is unpublished.

There are always customers asking the operator out for a date because she has a sexy voice, or asks for instructions on how to bake a pie or warm up a baby bottle.

"They call us an information service and most people think they can call us for anything," said Diane Rusnak, Des Plaines, who has been a

Ford 'cheap' campaign tactics under Reagan attack

by WANDALYN RICE

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and his supporters began accusing President Ford and his supporters of dirty campaign tactics and attempts to "buy votes" as the Illinois primary campaign moved into its final weekend.

In a swing Friday which took him through Chicago and Itasca, Reagan said efforts by the Ford campaign to depict his campaign as in trouble are lies.

Friday morning Reagan said, "The cheapest kind of politics is being played by the campaign forces of President Ford. The effort is to portray me as if I must win in the first few primaries. They know better than that — they're lying in their teeth."

THE ATTACK WAS strengthened later in the day by State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Schaumburg, Reagan's state campaign coordinator, when he introduced Reagan at a luncheon for the Elk Grove Village Assn. of Industry and Commerce in Itasca.

In his introduction, Totten said the Ford administration has been playing "very hard politics" in the campaign. He said, "There have been outright attempts to bribe the electorate through pork barrel projects and key appointments from primary states."

Totten listed promises Ford made during campaign swings through Massachusetts and Florida about increasing jobs and military bases in those states as examples of "pork barreling." In addition, he said Ford has appointed residents of such primary states as Florida, North Carolina and Texas to many federal positions.

Totten said, "Those of us in Illinois are aware of vote buying and vote fraud. People have gone to jail for doing that with their own money — here we see LBJ (President Lyndon B. Johnson) politics being played with the taxpayers' money."

Earlier, during an appearance on the Phil Donahue Show on WGN-TV, Reagan complained the press and television coverage favors the President. He said he had been invited to appear on WTTW-TV news Saturday and rearranged his schedule to do so, but the program was canceled when Ford did not agree also to appear.

"IF THE PRESIDENT had accepted and I had rejected the invitation, I wonder if they would have canceled the program," he said.

In campaign appearances throughout the day, Reagan continued his attacks on the foreign policy of Ford and Sec. of State Ronald Reagan and related his experiences as governor of California for eight years.

Reagan said the Ford administration has not steered a "steady, balanced course." He said in the last 18 months "I've seen a series of actions that I am sure are motivated by simple expediency."

He also said a speech by Kissinger this week defending foreign policy "sounded almost hysterical" and said, "I think it's a sign of desperation."

Reagan also repeated his insistance that he has not been hurt by primary losses in New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Florida. In Massachusetts, he said, "We didn't even buy a postage stamp" and won 15 delegates. "We are ahead of where we thought we'd be in delegates," he said.

Here is the latest set of winning numbers in the Illinois Lottery's 12-week Super Shot drawing.

Brennan backed

Wheeling Dems snub Chapman

by WANDALYN RICE

Sample ballots have been printed for distribution in Wheeling Township which urge Democratic voters Tuesday to cast "bullet" votes for Joan E. Brennan of Elk Grove Village and to ignore State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, in the 3rd Legislative District.

The ballots, which have printed on the bottom, "Paid for by the Wheeling Township Regular Democratic Organization," appear to be the result of a continuing feud between Mrs. Chapman and Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman.

Norman refused to comment on the sample ballots Friday.

MRS. CHAPMAN SAID she had received a copy of the sample from a fellow Democrat. She said the sample lists most of the regular Democratic candidates, including Sec. of State Michael Howlett who is running for governor, in small red letters.

Mrs. Brennan's name and the names of Norman and other candidates running with him for delegate to the Democratic National Convention are listed in larger red type. The names of the two regular Democratic candidates for Supreme Court and Circuit Court Clerk Morgan M. Finley are also listed in the larger type.

The ballot urges voters to cast three votes for Mrs. Brennan, a "bullet" vote. In the legislative primary, voters can cast 1½ votes each for Mrs. Brennan and Mrs. Chapman or cast three votes for one of them.

Mrs. Brennan said Friday she was not aware of the sample ballots. She said, "I have said I am not running against Eugenia Chapman or against Mrs. Macdonald or Totten (State Reps. Virginia Macdonald and Donald Totten, the two Republican representatives for the 3rd District.)."

HOWEVER, MRS. BRENNAN said she and Mrs. Chapman "do stand for entirely different things on education and other issues." Mrs. Brennan has criticized Mrs. Chapman for voting to uphold Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of school aid funds last year.

Mrs. Chapman said except for the one copy of the ballot she has seen, she has not heard of it being distributed in the Wheeling Township precincts in the 3rd District.

Mrs. Chapman said she is "surprised" by the appearance of the sample ballot because "after all I have been endorsed by the committeemen in the 3rd District, and in Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships the organizations are acting in the traditional way and supporting both candidates."

She said, "This is a particularly cutting blow to have one's name omitted on a sample ballot in your own township. I don't believe this represents the feelings of the precinct captains in the township. I'm sure I'll get their support."

Walker, Howlett rap school tax limit

Gov. Daniel Walker and Sec. of State Michael Howlett both said Friday they think communities should be able to raise their school taxes as high as they want to. State law currently sets a limit on school tax rates, and even a voter referendum cannot legally boost rates beyond that limit. Some districts in the Chicago suburbs, which are already taxing at the maximum rate, want to increase their taxes beyond that level. Howlett and Walker, opponents in Tuesday's Democratic gubernatorial primary, agreed the limit on referendum-approved tax rates should be lifted.

YMCA dedication Sunday

The world's largest YMCA officially will become larger Sunday when a $1 million fieldhouse addition to the Northwest Suburban YMCA, 300 E. Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines is dedicated. Dedication ceremonies are scheduled for 2 p.m., with an open house starting at 3 p.m. A series of sports demonstrations are planned, in addition to appearances by sports and broadcasting celebrities.

Walker White House try rumors still circulating

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Illinois political observers Friday were talking of a rumored Walker plan to enter California's June 8 primary election — if the governor survives Illinois' gubernatorial contest Tuesday.

In California, election officials Friday denied knowledge of a drive to secure 44,035 petition signatures that would place Walker on the state's Democratic primary ballot.

The speculation began Thursday when Walker aide Victor de Grazia discussed the governor's Presidential ambitions. "If he (Walker) isn't the (Presidential) nominee in 1976, the Republicans will win, so then he'll be the candidate in 1980," de Grazia said.

A day after the comment, de Grazia was asking reporters to "consider its context. We were kicking things around. The reporter said, 'Do I think Walker will be president?' I said, 'Sure.' He said, 'When?' I said, 'If not in '76, then in 1980.' "

DE GRAZIA TOLD the Herald Friday that "there is no way" Walker will enter the California race because the filing deadline had passed. "I looked up the date," he said.

But California officials told the Herald that the state's filing deadline is March 26.

If Walker plans to enter the California race, he faces a Monday deadline for filing of a "steering" committee list. That deadline can be extended, if Walker backers can convince California officials that the governor did not begin planning of his presidential bid until after the Illinois primary, said Karen Daniels, of the California secretary of state's office.

Other Walker aides were blaming the primary election speculation on Sec. of State Michael Howlett, the governor's opponent in Tuesday's election.

Walker's reelection campaign has focused on an interest in winning another term in the governor's manson, not the White House. Walker backers fear that some voters — in what observers predict will be a close election — may shy from the governor if presidential aspiration becomes a frequent topic.

Ford 'cheap' campaign tactics under Reagan attack

by WANDALYN RICE

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and his supporters began accusing President Ford and his supporters of dirty campaign tactics and attempts to "buy votes" as the Illinois primary campaign moved into its final weekend.

In a swing Friday which took him through Chicago and Itasca, Reagan said efforts by the Ford campaign to depict his campaign as in trouble are lies.

Friday morning Reagan said, "The cheapest kind of politics is being played by the campaign forces of President Ford. The effort is to portray me as if I must win in the first few primaries. They know better than that — they're lying in their teeth."

THE ATTACK WAS strengthened later in the day by State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Schaumburg, Reagan's state campaign coordinator, when he introduced Reagan at a luncheon for the Elk Grove Village Assn. of Industry and Commerce in Itasca.

In his introduction, Totten said the Ford administration has been playing "very hard politics" in the campaign. He said, "There have been outright attempts to bribe the electorate through pork barrel projects and key appointments from primary states."

Totten listed promises Ford made during campaign swings through Massachusetts and Florida about increasing jobs and military bases in those states as examples of "pork barreling." In addition, he said Ford has appointed residents of such primary states as Florida, North Carolina and Texas to many federal positions.

Totten said, "Those of us in Illinois are aware of vote buying and vote fraud. People have gone to jail for doing that with their own money — here we see LBJ (President Lyndon B. Johnson) politics being played with the taxpayers' money."

Earlier, during an appearance on the Phil Donahue Show on WGN-TV, Reagan complained the press and television coverage favors the President. He said he had been invited to appear on WTTW-TV news Saturday and rearranged his schedule to do so, but the program was canceled when Ford did not agree also to appear.

"IF THE PRESIDENT had accepted and I had rejected the invitation, I wonder if they would have canceled the program," he said.

In campaign appearances throughout the day, Reagan continued his attacks on the foreign policy of Ford and Sec. of State Ronald Reagan and related his experiences as governor of California for eight years.

Reagan said the Ford administration has not steered a "steady, balanced course." He said in the last 18 months "I've seen a series of actions that I am sure are motivated by simple expediency."

He also said a speech by Kissinger this week defending foreign policy "sounded almost hysterical" and said, "I think it's a sign of desperation."

Reagan also repeated his insistance that he has not been hurt by primary losses in New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Florida. In Massachusetts, he said, "We didn't even buy a postage stamp" and won 15 delegates. "We are ahead of where we thought we'd be in delegates," he said.

Wheeling Dems snub Chapman

by WANDALYN RICE

Sample ballots have been printed for distribution in Wheeling Township which urge Democratic voters Tuesday to cast "bullet" votes for Joan E. Brennan of Elk Grove Village and to ignore State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, in the 3rd Legislative District.

The ballots, which have printed on the bottom, "Paid for by the Wheeling Township Regular Democratic Organization," appear to be the result of a continuing feud between Mrs. Chapman and Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman Donald Norman.

Norman refused to comment on the sample ballots Friday.

MRS. CHAPMAN SAID she had received a copy of the sample from a fellow Democrat. She said the sample lists most of the regular Democratic candidates, including Sec. of State Michael Howlett who is running for governor, in small red letters.

Mrs. Brennan's name and the names of Norman and other candidates running with him for delegate to the Democratic National Convention are listed in larger red type. The names of the two regular Democratic candidates for Supreme Court and Circuit Court Clerk Morgan M. Finley are also listed in the larger type.

The ballot urges voters to cast three votes for Mrs. Brennan, a "bullet" vote. In the legislative primary, voters can cast 1½ votes each for Mrs. Brennan and Mrs. Chapman or cast three votes for one of them.

Mrs. Brennan said Friday she was not aware of the sample ballots. She said, "I have said I am not running against Eugenia Chapman or against Mrs. Macdonald or Totten (State Reps. Virginia Macdonald and Donald Totten, the two Republican representatives for the 3rd District.)."

HOWEVER, MRS. BRENNAN said she and Mrs. Chapman "do stand for entirely different things on education and other issues." Mrs. Brennan has criticized Mrs. Chapman for voting to uphold Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of school aid funds last year.

Mrs. Chapman said except for the one copy of the ballot she has seen, she has not heard of it being distributed in the Wheeling Township precincts in the 3rd District.

Mrs. Chapman said she is "surprised" by the appearance of the sample ballot because "after all I have been endorsed by the committeemen in the 3rd District, and in Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships the organizations are acting in the traditional way and supporting both candidates."

She said, "This is a particularly cutting blow to have one's name omitted on a sample ballot in your own township. I don't believe this represents the feelings of the precinct captains in the township. I'm sure I'll get their support."

Walker, Howlett rap school tax limit

Gov. Daniel Walker and Sec. of State Michael Howlett both said Friday they think communities should be able to raise their school taxes as high as they want to. State law currently sets a limit on school tax rates, and even a voter referendum cannot legally boost rates beyond that limit. Some districts in the Chicago suburbs, which are already taxing at the maximum rate, want to increase their taxes beyond that level. Howlett and Walker, opponents in Tuesday's Democratic gubernatorial primary, agreed the limit on referendum-approved tax rates should be lifted.

Walker White House try rumors still circulating

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Illinois political observers Friday were talking of a rumored Walker plan to enter California's June 8 primary election — if the governor survives Illinois' gubernatorial contest Tuesday.

In California, election officials Friday denied knowledge of a drive to secure 44,035 petition signatures that would place Walker on the state's Democratic primary ballot.

The speculation began Thursday when Walker aide Victor de Grazia discussed the governor's Presidential ambitions. "If he (Walker) isn't the (Presidential) nominee in 1976, the Republicans will win, so then he'll be the candidate in 1980," de Grazia said.

A day after the comment, de Grazia was asking reporters to "consider its context. We were kicking things around. The reporter said, 'Do I think Walker will be president?' I said, 'Sure.' He said, 'When?' I said, 'If not in '76, then in 1980.' "

DE GRAZIA TOLD the Herald Friday that "there is no way" Walker will enter the California race because the filing deadline had passed. "I looked up the date," he said.

But California officials told the Herald that the state's filing deadline is March 26.

If Walker plans to enter the California race, he faces a Monday deadline for filing of a "steering" committee list. That deadline can be extended, if Walker backers can convince California officials that the governor did not begin planning of his presidential bid until after the Illinois primary, said Karen Daniels, of the California secretary of state's office.

Other Walker aides were blaming the primary election speculation on Sec. of State Michael Howlett, the governor's opponent in Tuesday's election.

Walker's reelection campaign has focused on an interest in winning another term in the governor's manson, not the White House. Walker backers fear that some voters — in what observers predict will be a close election — may shy from the governor if presidential aspiration becomes a frequent topic.

Blast kills 11 volunteers, death toll hits 26

PARTRIDGE, Ky. (UPI) — Eleven men on a volunteer safety mission deep underground were found dead Friday, raising to 26 the death toll from twin methane gas explosions in the same Kentucky mountainside mine in two days.

Fifteen miners were killed by a blast that rocked the Scotia Coal Co. mine Tuesday. The 11 victims found Friday huddled in the same shaft had climbed inside to try to find out what caused the first explosion and to clear the mine of poisonous gas.

Friday's dead included three federal mine inspectors and one miner who had been working underground Tuesday, escaped safely and then volunteered to go back into the tunnel Thursday night to help find the cause of the first blast.

"These men . . . gave their lives in the pursuit of information that would help prevent further tragic accidents," said Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll. "The cost of 26 lives is a price too high for Kentucky families, the families of the federal mine safety officers, for any family to pay. But it has been paid."

The blasts and underground caveins occurred 59 hours apart.

Two other mine inspectors survived the latest explosion, stumbling 5,000 feet through the tunnels to safety early Friday. The bodies of the 11 victims were found 13 hours after the explosion Thursday night.

"This can't be true!" screamed a young woman when the word was passed among relatives that there were no survivors among the trapped men. She was standing in a chilly rain with other relatives and family friends of the dead men around a concrete blockhouse washroom near the mine.

The bodies were found Friday by 20 rescue workers who made their way into the area of the explosion after a giant borer drilled a 15-foot-wide hole in the top of the mine.

The federal Mining Safety and Enforcement Administration said the explosions occurred in the same general area.

H. W. Kirkpatrick, Kentucky commissioner of mines and minerals, said the bodies of the 11 men were left in the mine because of the fear of more explosions.

"We made the decision to remove the rescuers and leave the bodies in place because of uncertain conditions in the mine," said Kirkpatrick. "We don't know for sure what killed them, but I feel they were killed by the blast."

The two men who escaped said they thought the men still trapped were alive shortly after the explosion. They had about an hour's supply of oxygen.

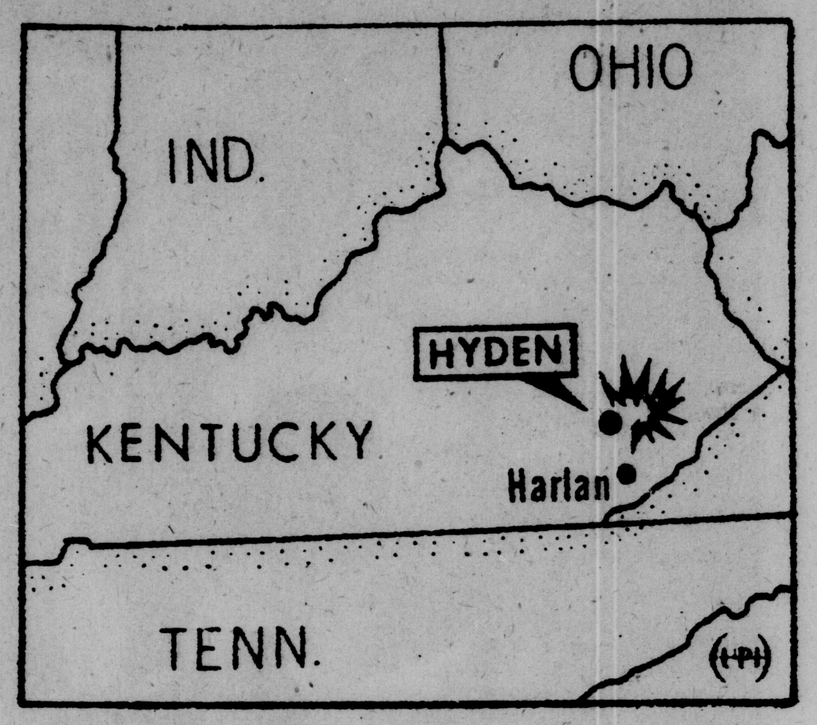
"This news comes as a deep shock, an almost unbelievable sequel to the tragedy of last Tuesday — the deaths of 15 miners in the same mining shaft," the governor said. "The irony of this latest tragedy is equally hard to accept — that these victims were in the shaft to determine the cause of Tuesday's explosions."

Relatives of the trapped men waited for 13 hours in a steady drizzle until they were told their loved ones were dead. They then were led to Kentucky State Police cars for the long drive home.

"Members of the families are in a state of shock," said Rev. Charles Wilcox, chaplain at Appalachian Hospital in nearby Whitesburg.

Ralph Die, a vice president of Blue Diamond Co., Knoxville, Tenn., the parent company of the Scotia Coal Co., said a high concentration of methane gas was believed to be the cause of Thursday night's explosion.

The miner victims were identified as John Hackworth, Monroe Sturgill, James Sturgill, Don Polly, James Williams, Glen Barker, Don Creech and J. B. Holbrook. The federal inspectors were identified as Grover Tulsey, Kenneth Kiser and Richard Sammons.



Former Gulf lobbyist indicted on donation rap

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate grand jury Friday indicted Claude C. Wild, Gulf Oil Corporation's former Chief lobbyist, for authorizing illegal campaign donations to two U.S. senators.

The two-count indictment returned in U.S. District Court charged Wild authorized corporate contributions of $5,000 to the 1974 primary campaign of Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, and $2,500 in the 1972 general election to Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga.

The Watergate special prosecutor's office said each illegal contribution carries a maximum penalty of two years in prison and $10,000 fine.

The indictment, returned before U.S. District Court Judge William B. Jones, charged Wild, a former Gulf vice president in charge of governmental relations for the oil company, "did willfully and unlawfully consent" in the contribution to Inouye between March 15 and June 30, 1973, and in the contribution to Nunn Sept. 27, 1972.

The campaign contributions statute carries a maximum penalty of a year in prison and $1,000 fine for an ordinary violation but doubles the prison term and increases the money fine 10 times if the violation was willful. The grand jury charged Wild committed willful violations.

Wild resigned as Gulf's vice president and chief lobbyist in 1974 following his conviction on Watergate charges of making an illegal campaign contribution to Richard M. Nixon's 1972 presidential campaign.

The name of former President Richard Nixon will appear on the Nebraska primary ballot May 11 as the candidate of delegate contender Peteris Taurins of Lincoln. Automakers deny overpricing

Spokesmen for the Big Three automakers denied Friday that their companies are overpricing replacement parts to make up for losses on new car sales. Kissinger reprimands assistant

Assistant Sec. of State Alfred Atherton has admitted he leaked classified information to a journalist and was "severely reprimanded" by Sec. of State Henry Kissinger, the State Department announced Friday. Denying Atherton had been made "a fall guy," Deputy Undersecretary Lawrence S. Eagleburger said Atherton admitted he read to journalist Edward Sheehan from classified accounts of Kissinger's Middle East shuttle diplomacy conversations. Sheehan used the material in a recent Foreign Policy magazine article, infuriating Kissinger and leading him to order a departmental investigation to trace the source of the leak.

Manson apostle chides FBI agent

Manson apostle Sandra Good, acting as her own defense lawyer, chided an FBI agent Friday in an attempt to show he incompetently searched her apartment for death threat letters. As the prosecution neared the end of its case, Agent Wade Plucker told how he and other agents found some 3,000 letters in the apartment of Miss Good and Lynette Fromme Sept. 5, the day Miss Fromme pointed a pistol at President Ford. Miss Good is on trial on charges of conspiring to mail death threats to business leaders.

Beirut president dismissed

The rebel military commander of Beirut said Friday he was dismissing President Suleiman Franjieh from office but the president, surrounded by loyalists at his hill-top palace, refused to go. Clashes between rival army units left at least 20 dead and 35 wounded in the first 24 hours of the military revolt by the Beirut army garrison. Its commander, Brig. Gen. Aziz Ahdab announced late Friday night that he was dismissing Franjieh from office. He instructed parliament to meet and elect a new president.

32 publicly executed

Thousands of chanting Nigerians watched troops of Nigeria's leftist military regime execute 32 antigovernment plotters with 10 minutes of automatic weapons fire, Lagos radio reported Friday. The spectacular public executions took place Thursday evening, immediately after the ruling Supreme Military Council confirmed death sentences passed by military tribunals on the 32. They were convicted of taking part in an abortive coup in Lagos Feb. 13 during which the plotters assassinated Chief of State Gen. Murtala Muhammed. Loyal troops quelled the revolt within a few hours.

Patty rests; Judge mulls instructions

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The judge at the Patricia Hearst trial said Friday he would instruct the jury to give her testimony the same weight and credence they give to that of other witnesses in the bank robbery case.

While Miss Hearst rested in her jail cell recovering from the flu and the jury took the day off, attorneys and the judge worked on procedural matters to try and speed up the trial in hopes the jury can begin deliberating by the end of next week.

Meanwhile, Miss Hearst's parents reacted with outrage to a second terrorist bombing of a Hearst family landmark — a mansion at the Wyntoon ranch near Mt. Shasta in Northern California which was damaged slightly by an explosion Thursday night. Another bombing a month ago caused $1 million damage to a guest house at the Hearst castle at San Simeon.

The trial, in recess because of the newspaper heiress' illness, was scheduled to resume on Monday, when prosecution psychiatrist Dr. Harry Kozol is expected to continue his testimony that Miss Hearst was a willing participant in the robbery along with members of her Symbionese Liberation Army captors. The defense contends she was forced to take part by fear of death.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter, prosecutor James L. Browning Jr. and defense attorney F. Lee Bailey Friday discussed the instructions the judge will give the jury.

Carter said he will tell the panel of seven women and five men, "You have to give the testimony of the defendant the same credibility as that of any other witness."

Six left in the field

Short on cash, Shapp quits race

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, short on cash and ignored by most voters, Friday dropped out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Shapp, 63, said he lacked the time, money and organization to stay in the race. His departure left six major politicians in the field.

The lack of money forced Shapp to even abandon plans to run in the April 27 Pennsylvania primary, where he had hoped to pick up many of his home state's delegates.

The governor said he has spent $700,000 since he announced last September, but got only 3 per cent of the vote in Massachusetts last week and 2 per cent in Florida on Tuesday. His campaign is $80,000 in debt.

Campaign aide Norval Reece said Shapp, who is a millionaire, has spent more than $100,000 of his personal fortune to run for president.

"I guess I underestimated what would happen if I got a poor showing in Massachusetts and Florida," Shapp said.

He said he tried to present the issues he considered important to the nation, but said voters were more interested in glamorous candidates and "emotional" issues such as busing.

"It is very difficult for someone campaigning solely on the issues, and then only part time, to compete in the complex political infighting of the presidential primary system," Shapp said.

"Unfortunately, I just haven't had the time, the money, the field organization or the support of the media to break through in the voting booth."

Shapp was the first Jew to seriously seek the presidency, and he concentrated on Jewish and elderly voters in Florida, where he got only 31,000 votes and failed to win any delegates in that state.

He said he now considers Sen. Henry Jackson, who won in Massachusetts and placed third in Florida, the frontrunner.

Jackson, Alabama Gov. George Wallace, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, Rep. Morris Udall and former Sen. Fred Harris all have delegates slated in the Pennsylvania primary. The other major candidate is Sargent Shriver.

Shapp refused to say who he would support for the nomination.

Thousands of chanting Nigerians watched troops of Nigeria's leftist military regime execute 32 antigovernment plotters with 10 minutes of automatic weapons fire, Lagos radio reported Friday. The spectacular public executions took place Thursday evening, immediately after the ruling Supreme Military Council confirmed death sentences passed by military tribunals on the 32. They were convicted of taking part in an abortive coup in Lagos Feb. 13 during which the plotters assassinated Chief of State Gen. Murtala Muhammed. Loyal troops quelled the revolt within a few hours.

Patty rests; Judge mulls instructions

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The judge at the Patricia Hearst trial said Friday he would instruct the jury to give her testimony the same weight and credence they give to that of other witnesses in the bank robbery case.

While Miss Hearst rested in her jail cell recovering from the flu and the jury took the day off, attorneys and the judge worked on procedural matters to try and speed up the trial in hopes the jury can begin deliberating by the end of next week.

Meanwhile, Miss Hearst's parents reacted with outrage to a second terrorist bombing of a Hearst family landmark — a mansion at the Wyntoon ranch near Mt. Shasta in Northern California which was damaged slightly by an explosion Thursday night. Another bombing a month ago caused $1 million damage to a guest house at the Hearst castle at San Simeon.

The trial, in recess because of the newspaper heiress' illness, was scheduled to resume on Monday, when prosecution psychiatrist Dr. Harry Kozol is expected to continue his testimony that Miss Hearst was a willing participant in the robbery along with members of her Symbionese Liberation Army captors. The defense contends she was forced to take part by fear of death.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter, prosecutor James L. Browning Jr. and defense attorney F. Lee Bailey Friday discussed the instructions the judge will give the jury.

Carter said he will tell the panel of seven women and five men, "You have to give the testimony of the defendant the same credibility as that of any other witness."

Six left in the field

Short on cash, Shapp quits race

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, short on cash and ignored by most voters, Friday dropped out of the race for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Shapp, 63, said he lacked the time, money and organization to stay in the race. His departure left six major politicians in the field.

The lack of money forced Shapp to even abandon plans to run in the April 27 Pennsylvania primary, where he had hoped to pick up many of his home state's delegates.

The governor said he has spent $700,000 since he announced last September, but got only 3 per cent of the vote in Massachusetts last week and 2 per cent in Florida on Tuesday. His campaign is $80,000 in debt.

Campaign aide Norval Reece said Shapp, who is a millionaire, has spent more than $100,000 of his personal fortune to run for president.

"I guess I underestimated what would happen if I got a poor showing in Massachusetts and Florida," Shapp said.

He said he tried to present the issues he considered important to the nation, but said voters were more interested in glamorous candidates and "emotional" issues such as busing.

"It is very difficult for someone campaigning solely on the issues, and then only part time, to compete in the complex political infighting of the presidential primary system," Shapp said.

"Unfortunately, I just haven't had the time, the money, the field organization or the support of the media to break through in the voting booth."

Shapp was the first Jew to seriously seek the presidency, and he concentrated on Jewish and elderly voters in Florida, where he got only 31,000 votes and failed to win any delegates in that state.

He said he now considers Sen. Henry Jackson, who won in Massachusetts and placed third in Florida, the frontrunner.

Jackson, Alabama Gov. George Wallace, former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, Rep. Morris Udall and former Sen. Fred Harris all have delegates slated in the Pennsylvania primary. The other major candidate is Sargent Shriver.

Shapp refused to say who he would support for the nomination.

• Sweden's King Carl Gustaf Friday announced his engagement to Silvia Sommerlath, daughter of a wealthy West German businessman, the royal palace said. "The office of the marshal of the realm announces that His Majesty the King has engaged Miss Silvia Renate Sommerlath, daughter of Director Walther Sommerlath and his wife, nee De Toledo," the announcement said. It did not say when the wedding was to take place. Sources close to the royal palace said the king, 29, and Miss Sommerlath, 32, planned to announce details at a news conference today.

• Frances "Sissy" Farenthold, president of Wells College and former president of the National Women's Political Caucus, told students at a careers forum Friday that women were "still phantoms hovering around the constitution." Mrs. Farenthold, named president of the women's college in Aurora earlier this year, told students at Cornell University it would take "some hard-headed lobbying" to get the four states still needed for ratification of the federal Equal Rights Amendment.

• Former child star Margaret O'Brien, 38, announced Friday she is expecting her first baby in July. The actress, who starred in "Journey for Margaret" and such other hits as "Miracle On 34th Street," is the wife of business executive Roy Thorsen. Miss O'Brien said she planned to return to television and movie work early in 1977.

• Author Graham Greene appealed to the government of Haiti Friday to let him visit and tour the country "as a sign that things really have changed." Greene, 71, was banished from the Caribbean island nation by the late "Papa Doc" Duvalier after writing "The Comedians," an indictment of Duvalier and his secret police. Speaking to a meeting of American correspondents, Greene said there are currently 300 political prisoners in Haiti, including two friends of his. One, he said, has been driven to insanity in captivity.

Young, old cheer Ford in high school's finest hour

by LAURA SCHMALBACH

The pom pon squad swayed to the music, a little boy played cards with his mother and an elderly woman from Mundelein took a nap on her husband's shoulder.

A cascade of Bicentennial balloons patiently blown up by gym classes the morning before swirled and popped like fireworks and were grabbed by kids who had been brought for the thrill of a lifetime.

It was the bigtime at Buffalo Grove High School Friday night and the place was packed with people who came to see Jerry Ford, the man who really does toast his own English muffins in the morning.

"I'M JUST HERE because I wanted to see him in person," said a Buffalo Grove High School student, who had been reading "Helter Skelter" while he was waiting.

"I'm not sure if I'd vote for him, but I wanted to see what he is really like," he said.

When Ford finally walked from the auditorium to the fieldhouse, the waiting crowd picked up steam.

A kid punched his brother in excitement, prompting tears and a quick "Shush! He's coming" from his mother.

People shoved and twisted for a glimpse of Ford and a chance to shake his hand afterward.

In the school gym, where Ford made most of his remarks, the mood was as volatile as the popping of the balloons just before he spoke. Binoculars focused in, cameras flashed and placards waved — ranging from the slick red and white campaign versions to a homemade "Mary Hartman in '76" model.

BUT NEXT DOOR in the fieldhouse, yawns replaced cheers as the overflow crowd listened patiently to the piped-in remarks and waited for the President.

Why did they come?

"Well, you're a damn fool if you don't come a mile to see the President," said Martin Jeffers, a Buffalo Grove resident. "It's a definite hassle to wait so long, but it's worth it to see him. My three kids will remember this and that's what counts."

"I thought it would be a lot more. He didn't say very much. I haven't seen anything here that I don't see every night on television," said Roger Hertel.

But a Buffalo Grove cheerleader picking up a balloon as a souvenir said it was "the most exciting day I can remember."

''This is Buffalo Grove High School's finest hour." The comment was made publicly by Clarence Miller, the school's principal, but it probably was on the lips of many who left the school last night. It isn't often the President of the United States of America comes to your own town.

Centel operator for four years.

"We all go home and answer our own phone with directory assistance, may I help you. We rattle off numbers in our sleep. But I enjoy the work. It suits me just fine."

THE SPIRALING number of "411" calls dialed during the past five years has prompted Illinois Bell to charge for information beginning next year to cover increased service costs.

The Illinois Commerce Commission has approved the proposal, which would give customers six free directory assistance calls each month with a 10-cent charge for each additional call. Customers who do not call for aid will receive credits on their accounts.

Directory assistance calls from hospitals, hotels, public phones and handicapped persons will be free under the new program.

Central Telephone of Des Plaines, a smaller company, has considered a similar charge, but officials there say they can continue the information service at no cost.

BOTH TELEPHONE companies have experienced about a 7 per cent increase in directory assistance calls each year since 1970.

Centel's information calls took a sudden plunge in 1975, compared to 1974, according to Terrence Rickert, the company's division traffic supervisor.

Incoming calls appear to be leveling off because of a massive advertising campaign waged by both telephone companies during the past two years, urging customers to consult their directories before dialing directory assistance, he said.

But the advertising effort didn't have enough effect on Illinois Bell customers to keep the company from imposing a charge, said Howard W. Hammer, a company spokesman.

The company projects incoming information calls will increase from 319 million in 1974 to 400 million in 1977 for its entire system, which serves Chicago, its suburbs and portions of Central and Southern Illinois.

THE COST OF Illinois Bell's directory assistance service is expected to increase from $55 million in 1974 to an estimated $92.5 million in 1977, Hammer said. Part of the cost includes installation of new equipment to handle calls.

"In comparison, Central Telephone pays out about $1.28 million to provide the service each year, and we don't get any revenue back from it. The time may come when we too will have to charge to support the service," Rickert said.

But Centel officials currently are concentrating on modernizing their directory assistance operations with the microfilm equipment that has already been installed in most of Illinois Bell's 42 state offices.

Despite new equipment, the director assistance operator is indispensable.

Centel receives an estimated 20,000 calls, and Illinois Bell, 30,000 on an average business day. Each operator handles as many as 350 information calls each day.

DIRECTORY ASSISTANCE calls for Centel come in from 57,000 customers in the company's 42-square mile service area which includes parts of Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Park Ridge and Northbrook.

Illinois Bell provides the same round-the-clock service providing telephone numbers within the 312 area code, from seven directory assistance offices in the Northwest suburbs.

The 74 operators who work in the company's Wheeling office, 50 E. Dundee Rd., have all of the telephone numbers they need on 40 filmstrips, which have replaced 110 pounds of directories.

It takes a good eye and a lot of patience to be a directory assistance operator like Susan Possehl.

Dist. 59 citizens committee mulls report

Consultants cite benefits of unit schools

A unit school district for the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 area could offer a better educational program by improving communications between grade levels and promoting a continuous education program from kindergarten through 12th grade, consultants have told a district citizens committee.

The study on education programs currently in Dist. 59 and 214 was presented Thursday night by the Illinois School Consultants hired by Dist. 59 to provide information on forming a unit district.

Dist. 59 is one of seven feeder districts in High School Dist. 214.

SABRA PATTERSON, committee member, said she did not understand how communications could be improved through a unit district. She said she has heard junior high and elementary schools in Dist. 59 now have poor communications.

Ed Kenna, committee member, said, "In reality, you have no more assurance with a dual or a unit district for articulation."

Dist. 214, which would lose two of its eight high schools to the unit district, said in a report that 11 educational programs could be jeopardized if a unit district was formed.

Programs that might be affected, according to Dist. 214, because too few students would be enrolled, include horticulture, summer school specialized courses, instructional computer operation, adult education, driver education, orchestra, advanced power mechanics, fire cadet, and auto body repair.

DIST. 59 SAID none of these programs would be adversely affected by forming a unit district because the new district could provide the same services or work cooperatively with Dist. 214 to set up a joint program in those areas.

Dist. 59 said the proposed unit district also would have a large enough population to offer the same type of adult education program currently given through Dist. 214.

Another benefit of forming a unit district mentioned in the consultant's report was a more efficient use of financial resources. The consultants presented figures showing Dist. 214 spending $1,999 per student in comparison with Dist. 59, which spends $1,293 per student, a 54.5 per cent difference.

..G. P. Tewari, committee member, said the committee needs data showing a comparison on how the two districts spend their money to be able to determine if money can be spent more effectively.

"Are we going to assume a better financial situation means a better education? You can spend money on anything," he said.

group or poor people generally could occupy an area if the zoning was downgraded," Siegel's brief states.

"This case should be nothing more than a garden-variety zoning controversy. The only real question is the reasonableness of the zoning restriction, which both on its face and in fact is not aimed at any racial minority," Siegel's brief states.

THE BRIEF FILED by F. Willis Caruso, MHDC attorney, objects to that argument. It states: "Arlington Heights' blithe assurances that its rejection of Lincoln Green was motivated solely by a concern for neighboring property values and the alleged 'integrity' of its zoning plan simply cannot justify the racially discriminatory effects of that action by a municipality whose spectacular growth has been limited to whites, whose segregated housing stock is the most exclusionary in the Chicago area, and whose zoning plan has been amended dozens of times to permit development of thousands of high-rent apartments adjacent to single-family neighborhoods."

Caruso's brief also argues that during plan commission hearings and village board deliberations no professional advice or testimony was given in opposition to the Lincoln Green plan.

BUT THE COMMISSION and trustees were "besieged with advice on the 'social issue' that much of the Arlington Heights community felt Lincoln Green raised," Caruso states.

His brief also includes excerpts of letters to The Herald opposing the project for racial reasons. Jack Walsh, village president at the time, is also quoted as saying, "the objections of the residents is a mandate to reject this proposal."

Siegel's brief includes an argument questioning whether MHDC should have been entitled to bring the court action against the village.

"The law is clear in Illinois that a contract purchaser whose contract is conditioned on rezoning, as is here the case, has no standing to challenge the validity of a zoning ordinance," it states.

"The whole proposal may well be moot" because MHDC's interests are contingent on rezoning, Siegel's brief says.

MHDC should have "no different status than any other corporation merely because it has been created for the purpose of developing housing for low-income tenants," it says.

The way we see it

Our choices in judicial primary

Voters Tuesday will face a major chore when they are confronted by bedsheet-style paper ballots in the Republican and Democratic judicial primaries.

The large number of candidates should not discourage voters, however. There are some fine candidates running.

Of particular importance is the Democratic primary race for two seats on the Illinois Supreme Court. In that race, we urge votes for James A. Dooley and William G. Clark, the two independent candidates.

Clark is the former Illinois attorney general and a man of high reputation for integrity. He ran afoul of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley in 1968 when he ran as a liberal against Sen. Everett Dirksen, and he has not been able to get organization support since. He would be a strong, independent judge.

Dooley, a Chicago personal injury lawyer, would bring independence and legal knowledge to the high court. Dooley and Clark are far superior to the two candidates endorsed by Daley — Circuit Court Judge Joseph Power and William Dieringer. Power and Dieringer could be expected to do Daley's bidding on the court.

On the Republican side, there are fewer contests. However, two candidates running for Circuit Court judgeships from the suburbs deserve particular attention from Northwest suburban voters.

State Rep. Brian Duff and Leonard Grazian, president of the Maine Township Dist. 207 Board of Education, are judicial candidates of integrity who have proven their abilities as public officials. We endorse both.

Because of time and space limitations, The Herald has been unable to interview all of the judicial candidates. However, three bar associations have rated the candidates and as an aid to voters, we provide here the ratings from the various organizations.

The rating organizations are as follows:

• CBA: Chicago Bar Assn., the group considered most "establishment" of the groups rating judges. The association screened 160 candidates, including many in uncontested races, and found 124 qualified.

•CCL: The Chicago Council of Lawyers, the "activist" lawyers group, which has found just 35 candidates qualified.

• NWSB: Northwest Suburban Bar Association, an organization of Northwest suburban attorneys which screened candidates for the Appellate Court and suburban Circuit Court seats as well as a few candidates running for the Circuit Court countywide. NWSB found just two candidates unqualified.

Candidates for the various offices are listed in the order they will appear on the ballot.

'Vote choice is critical'

In three days Illinois will hold its primary. Although it is now too late to register to vote, it is not too late for those of us already registered to utilize this opportunity.

In the past, only a small portion of the general population has voted in our primaries. There is no reason this year will be any different. Therefore, it is imperative that those voting make choices of candidates that are as thoroughly researched as possible.

Admittedly it is a difficult and time-consuming job to discover the differences between the many candidates on a primary ballot. It is not, however, an impossible job. Many sources of information are available. Instead of our complaining of the current political saturation by the media, we should listen — this, no doubt, being the least painful method of gathering the needed facts.

Although a primary is not a final selection to fill an office, it is nonetheless critical. This year there exist many factions within each party. While most of us will see that we vote in the November election for a president, it is vital to remember it is these local and state offices that will most closely affect us as individuals.

It is a shame that we who, as a nation, so revere the concept of democracy, so often fail to participate in it. Let's make an effort to change this on March 16. Vote!

She backs Walker

In this day and age, it is sincerely hard to believe that we the American public call ourselves vote-conscious citizens.

In order to have better government, we the people of the United States must come out and vote carefully, and particularly read up on the candidates, so that men and women with the proper credentials will guarantee the rights of our children, the future of America.

Special note: At this time, I would like to say that I find it extremely appalling the treatment that Governor Walker has received since his election in 1972, and that we Illinois citizens have not repressed the situation!

A voting 'privilege'

Nearly 400 registered voters in Dist. 20 (polling place — Miner Junior High School) will have the opportunity to exercise their right to vote March 16.

Regardless of party affiliation, I hope my neighbors can say (after the primary) that they live in the Wheeling Township district where the highest percentage of registered voters cast their ballots.

Local residents, Democrat and Republican, will serve as election judges from 6 a.m. until the last ballots are counted late in the evening. These neighbors have offered to assist in the election process, will take a vacation day from their place of work and have taken the time to attend special training for judges.

Let's take a few minutes ourselves to vote; it's a privilege many do not have.

'Labor contributes'

Your March 1 lead story headlined "Business 'gifts' swell campaign coffers" accurately sums up business efforts to participate in this year's elections through contribution to candidates, but it omits a big part of the overall story.

Illinois labor unions have raised and distributed campaign contributions which make business efforts look trifling by comparison. The Illinois Education Association's political arm has raised over $300,000 for this year's campaigns. And that's only one of many Illinois unions. The money and man-hours which labor union members contribute to political campaigns are worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. Any realistic look at the overall campaign contribution process in Illinois would show that business still lags far behind labor in the total dollars devoted to political campaigns.

And here's the real clincher: Illinois labor unions are exempt from the legal requirement to report their campaign contributions to the Illinois Board of Elections. Although business firms and private citizens are strictly compelled to file the amount of their campaign contributions with this watchdog agency, labor unions — through a recent court decision — enjoy preferred treatment in this area. Surely this is an unfair advantage denied to all other political contributors.

Labor dominance of political campaign fund-raising has effectively excluded the efforts of other groups. Business' catch-up effort to equalize this imbalance has been long overdue. For the foreseeable future, it will be labor — not business — which will continue to "swell campaign coffers."

Loses beer can battle

by DOROTHY MEYER

After only two weeks back at work, almost all benefits from my late lamented vacation have been eroded. I'm tired again, my fingernails are down to nubs again and I still have a few thank-you notes to write.

I want to write to Mr. Coors, too.

I don't like his new beer can, the one with the pop top that doesn't leave a metal ring to be discarded. I guess it's another measure to save man from himself, some of the species being so stupid that they drop the metal ring into the can and then proceed to drink it.

Some choke on it and some swallow it, and in my opinion gluttons who gulp that greedily ought to choke and have distress in the lower tract.

In order to open this new can, you first press in a little circle to release the pressure. Then you press in a larger circle from which you drink or pour. After years of abuse from so-called easy-to-open packages with "push in here" directions, my thumb is in no condition to fight beer cans too. It is, however, just the right size to get stuck in the hole.

Walking around with a beer can hanging from your thumb looks funny and hurts a lot, but even worse, it's impossible to get at the beer that way.

Another letter I want to write is to the association of manufacturers of plumbing fixtures, specifically water faucets.

In my recent travels I met many different types of faucets, all of them frustrating. There's the four-on-the-floor gearshift type, the push-and-turn, the pull-and-turn and one I never did conquer so I can't tell you how it works.

Anybody can get the hang of a tricky tap if they're around it long enough, but I was visiting with the old theory in mind that fish and house guests begin to stink after three days. And three days is not long enough to get acquainted with modern plumbing fixtures.

I think I stripped the gears at my brother's house, I know I squirted the curtains at my cousins, I got a faceful of water in the Las Vegas hotel and no water at all while I visited my old college chum.

The only water feature I met that I liked was the water bed where I visited last and my hostess insisted I try its therapy.

And I dreamed that I shot the rapids down the Colorado River and went over Niagara Falls in a barrel and won the backstroke event in the summer Olympics. I felt fine next morning but I sure was pooped.

I must write and tell the lady again how much I enjoyed it — as soon as I can get this beer can off my thumb.

The way we see it

Our choices in judicial primary

Voters Tuesday will face a major chore when they are confronted by bedsheet-style paper ballots in the Republican and Democratic judicial primaries.

The large number of candidates should not discourage voters, however. There are some fine candidates running.

Of particular importance is the Democratic primary race for two seats on the Illinois Supreme Court. In that race, we urge votes for James A. Dooley and William G. Clark, the two independent candidates.

Clark is the former Illinois attorney general and a man of high reputation for integrity. He ran afoul of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley in 1968 when he ran as a liberal against Sen. Everett Dirksen, and he has not been able to get organization support since. He would be a strong, independent judge.

Dooley, a Chicago personal injury lawyer, would bring independence and legal knowledge to the high court. Dooley and Clark are far superior to the two candidates endorsed by Daley — Circuit Court Judge Joseph Power and William Dieringer. It is, however, just the right size to get stuck in the hole.

Walking around with a beer can hanging from your thumb looks funny and hurts a lot, but even worse, it's impossible to get at the beer that way.

Another letter I want to write is to the association of manufacturers of plumbing fixtures, specifically water faucets.

In my recent travels I met many different types of faucets, all of them frustrating. There's the four-on-the-floor gearshift type, the push-and-turn, the pull-and-turn and one I never did conquer so I can't tell you how it works.

Anybody can get the hang of a tricky tap if they're around it long enough, but I was visiting with the old theory in mind that fish and house guests begin to stink after three days. And three days is not long enough to get acquainted with modern plumbing fixtures.

I think I stripped the gears at my brother's house, I know I squirted the curtains at my cousins, I got a faceful of water in the Las Vegas hotel and no water at all while I visited my old college chum.

The only water feature I met that I liked was the water bed where I visited last and my hostess insisted I try its therapy.

And I dreamed that I shot the rapids down the Colorado River and went over Niagara Falls in a barrel and won the backstroke event in the summer Olympics. I felt fine next morning but I sure was pooped.

I must write and tell the lady again how much I enjoyed it — as soon as I can get this beer can off my thumb.

'Check stands on RTA'

While the bitter taste lingers in the mouths of suburbanites over the results of the RTA referendum, from which suburbanites worst fears and dread predictions have all come true, and then some, it is interesting to listen to candidates for the legislature explain their present position on the RTA.

The most recent which comes to mind is the stand of Roger Stanley, a candidate for the Republican nomination for State Representative in the second legislative district. Until recently Stanley was a staunch supporter of the RTA referendum, and was at one time an employe of Illinois House Speaker W. Robert Blair, the "father of the RTA."

Needless to say Mr. Blair was sent into political retirement by the people of his district for his part in the RTA fiasco, and since that time Mr Stanley has adopted a political "cop-out" position to soothe the electorates rubbed raw anger over the RTA.

Stanley says he supports legislation which would allow individual townships to "opt-out" of the RTA, which looks and sounds good to suburbanites. But here's the catch — every knowledgeable observer knows that the prospect of such a bill ever being passed by the Daley-Walker dominated state legislature has about a 1000-1 chance of getting passed!

The taxpayers have found themselves in a position in regard to the RTA which is near impossible to be extricated, because of the lack of judgment of such people as Blair and Stanley.

Backs 'citizen governor'

During this Bicentennial year, the voters of Illinois should take a few moments to consider the current situation of federal government. The sad truth is, our nation is not run by officials who are elected by the people. The decisions are made by bureaucrats, special interest lobbyists and political power brokers. The time is long overdue for some real input by ordinary taxpaying citizens, who, after all, pay for all these decisions, programs and mistakes.

His achievements as a "citizen governor" of California have convinced me to support Ronald Reagan for the Republican Presidential nomination. Among other things, Reagan held the line on the number of state employes for eight years. Also, in spite of inheriting a $700 million deficit budget, when he ended his tenure as Governor the state of California had a surplus of $400 million. And at no time in eight years did Reagan ever feel it was necessary to consult George Meany on how to run state government.

Mrs. Juckett backs two

I have been reading about and listening to the five remaining candidates in the Fourth Legislative District race for the General Assembly. Since we are to nominate two people to run against the Democrats in the fall, I feel we should find the best people available. Eugene Schlickman, who has spent 12 years or six terms in the General Assembly, should certainly be returned to Springfield. I have agreed with most of his views, and feel that he has done a good job representing our district.

One of the other four candidates will fill the seat vacated by my husband's death. I really feel that Roy Bergquist is the person that can do the job most effectively. Although a law degree is not an essential thing to have, it certainly is a big plus. The terminology used in legislation is more easily understood with such a qualification. Being a businessman, too, helps you to understand people and be able to deal with them and listen to both sides of the argument in order to make a fair evaluation for all parties concerned. Many pressures are forced upon these legislators, and it takes a broad, extensive background to cope with them.

Therefore, I urge you to strongly consider voting for Eugene Schlickman and Roy Bergquist for Republican state Representative in the Fourth Legislative District.

'Walker right on schools'

As indicated by speeches and editorials of various educators and their friends, Governor Walker has incurred their wrath. It is not surprising that Mayor Daley and his stooges are mad at Walker, but school trustees and administrators are not crybaby politicians who had their candy stolen. He has asked them to reduce their budget because of reduced enrollment and suggested that some "frills" could readily be eliminated. The educators claim there are no frills. I looked at the Harper College curriculum and concluded that the educators are wrong. Not only are many of their courses unnecessary adjuncts to higher education, quite a few are duplication of high school continuing education courses. If the educators think Walker is unreasonable, they should take a hard look at the drastic cuts in state funds for education in New Jersey. It can happen here!

Harper College is planning construction of a second campus and expansion of their present campus. The necessity of a second campus has not been demonstrated. They have benefitted from the generous attitude of taxpayers and perhaps apathy on the part of many. This attitude can be expected to change when the tax bite strikes in the next few years.

As to the charge that Walker's recommendations are "old fashioned," take a hard look at the "modern" education and its results over the last 15 years. In Dist. 59 they are considering "alternate schools," which is another name for going back to basics. Modern education is controversial, to say the least.

As school financing is shifted from local districts to state funding, the school boards and administrators will depend less on local referenda. By mass demonstrations and brainwashing of students and parents, they apparently expect to control state politicians who display fiscal responsibility to help their reelection prospects.

After a recitation of denial of special education funds by the state, school administrators complain they don't know what to expect from the Walker administration. The school districts anticipate state funding in addition to the general per capita funds and spend the money before collecting it. It seems clear that denial last year means denial can be expected this year. Such complaints indicate to me that administrators have been spoiled.

Contrary to the tone of this letter, this taxpayer has supported all local schools without complaint for 13 years. When school population was expanding, we provided school facilities without resorting to increased class size and double sessions. In fact, our expansion plans were usually ahead of school population and class sizes were reduced. In retrospect. I doubt the wisdom of some planning. Couldn't enrollment projections four to five years ago predict the present decrease in high school enrollment? We built Boffalo Grove High School and now are planning to close a good high school facility. Somehow my faith in the objectivity of their demographics has been diminished.

It is always difficult to retrench, but this is expected of public administrators, just as it is of private managers.

He backs Reagan

There are two strong feelings about government which many of us share. One of them is that the government is close, yet so far away. The Internal Revenue Service is there on April 15 with its hand out, but other agencies do not seem interested in our affairs and seem to get in the way. In addition, the cavalcade of cronies in Washington, if not responsible for many of our problems, have not made matters any better.

The past, these sentiments have sparked campaigns for public office. Unfortunately in many cases policies and practices did not change after these candidates were in office. In 1976, this must not be allowed to continue.

When we have reached the breaking point — tired of congressional pay raises, special interest favors, spending blunder, postal rate hikes and gamesmanship — what have we done? The electorate has supported leaders who came from the very depths of the bureaucracy, lobbyists, big labor and big business that we were trying to change. This year, polls seem to indicate that we are tired with business-as-usual. We see taxes rising with our remaining money buying less as government spends more than government takes in. Our representatives continue to throw money at our problems and they still persis. We hear a lot of talk about reform from the politicians because they know that's what we want to hear, but we see very little in the way of action. And throughout this we have had Washingtonians in the White House for 22 out of the last 30 years.

This year we have a viable alternative from outside of the nation's capital. The candidacy of Gov. Reagan not only offers us a chance to send Washington a message, but with it a set of directives to govern our affairs in the next four years with a man who can carry them out.

Reagan brings experience as his record in California demonstrates his administrative and leadership skills. We will not be the victims of experimentation, his common sense philosophy was tested for eight years in the nation's most populous state. California's budget surplus, tax relief and welfare refirm speak for themselves.

The brunt of public outrage centers on agencies and programs like the sex study at SIU and the Postal Service where programs fail to meet their original objectives and self-perpetuate with increased appropriations. This area of the Reagen record is important. As governor, he brought in outsiders who were not in pursuit of government careers and were therefore able to say so if they felt their agency or position was no longer needed. The record shows that many of the California appointees did just that.

The majority of those in the Washington buddy system, such as former congressman and Ford campaign chief Bo Callaway, have attempted to discredit Reagan and this negative approach has now been used by the President himself in New Hampshire. They realize that a Reagan administration would shake the government off its feet. They have much to lose if that happens but taxpayers have much to gain if Reagan receives the GOP nomination and is elected president.

Many people, understandibly so, are reluctant to abandon an incumbent president. However, when the taxpayer has been abandoned, nothing must stand in the way of returning government to its proper role in a free society.

Fortunately, the Illinois primary on March 16 gives us an opportunity to stand up, be counted and make our voices heard in electing Ronald Reagan the next President of the United States.

Urges vote for Anderson

You certainly missed the boat in your endorsement in the Republican primary contest for the office of Lt. governor! And your vapid editorial on the subject fails to explain how you came to your conclusions!

Joan Anderson offers the following experiences which I believe do make her "well qualified" for the office:

- She was elected a commissioner of the Metropolitan Sanitary District with over one million "votes of confidence!"
- She was cited for "distinguished service" to our Illinois Constitutional Convention, and has special expertise on home rule and local government affairs.
- She was elected and serves as vice chairman of the board of the College of DuPage, which gives her some practical experience in educational affairs.
- She has served as a member of the Legislative Commission on Intergovernmental Affairs and Cooperation, and as a member of the Illinois comptroller's county audit advisory board, giving her a background in finance.

The list goes on, but this should be enough for even the most lightheaded editor to recognize Joan Anderson as (to steal the words from your endorsement) ". . . an impressive and well-informed candidate . . . with an informed grasp of the . . . problems facing this state, a credit to her party and to the state if nominated."

I urge Fence Post readers to consider and vote for Joan Anderson for Lt. governor in the Republican primary contest on March 16.

Art Noveau defined by natural flowing forms

with Grace Carolyn

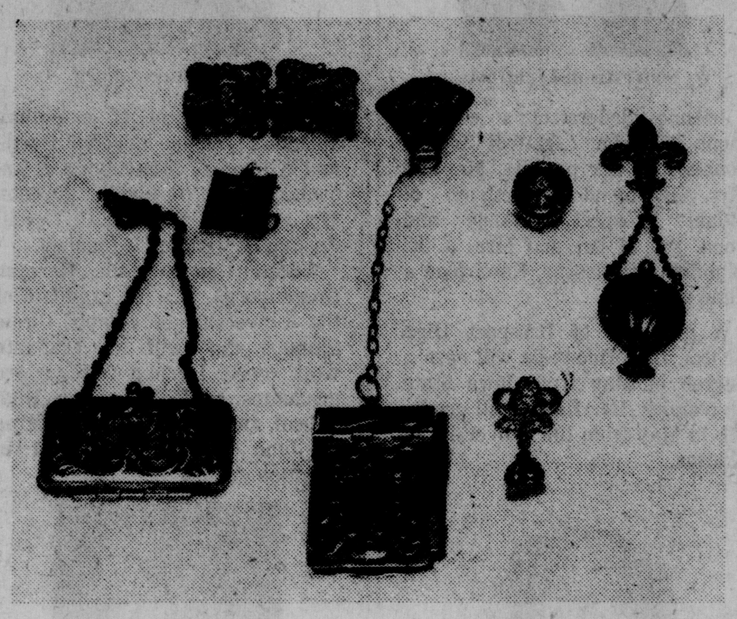
Last week I talked about Victorian jewelry, and the items pictured are related, since they are decorative and meant to be worn on the person, but most of these also served another purpose. Clockwise, starting in the lower left corner, is a chatelaine, a French word meaning a short chain worn by a lady, from which was suspended any one of a number of things: a small purse, keys, penknife, needlecase or watch. Sometimes the watch itself or the purse is called the chatelaine.

Next above is a tiny stamp box, then a two-pieced belt buckle, another chatelaine holding a small notebook and pencil, a pill box, a perfume bottle and a seal with the owner's initials, with which she stamped her envelopes in wax. All these are made of sterling silver and are so-marked. (The word "sterling" came into use about 1860 and it signifies the silver content is .925 fine.)

THESE SMALL novelties are alike in another respect, aside from the facts they are meant to be worn and are made of silver. They are all in the "Art Nouveau" style, which depicted "natural" forms, such as sinuous foliage, flowing vines, languid maidens and the like.

(There is a little difference of opinion on the pronunciation of Art Nouveau. Some insist it should be in the French manner, leaving off the "t" and accenting the final syllable of Nouveau. Others Americanize the words, pronouncing the "t" and accenting the first syllable. It means, of course, "new art")

Art Nouveau influenced almost everything in the late 1800s and early 1900s, not only in the United States, but in Europe, with its beginnings in France. The style was adapted to furniture, to architecture, lamps, vases and other ornaments, to dress, book illustrations and covers, posters and jewelry.



THE STYLE WAS A reaction, as is every art movement, to its previous style. At the near end of the 19th century almost every middle or upper class home was stuffed with furniture and objects copied from earlier times — the Baroque, the Rococco, the Renaissance and the Classical. These styles proclaimed the lifestyle of a nouveau riche class, which wanted to play it safe with old, accepted styles of art.

But a reaction to this imitative art was inevitable, and so there developed a desire to return to craftsmanship, natural free lines and simplicity. Art Nouveau as first interpreted by artists began to influence almost everything demanded by a consuming public. Also inevitably, the Art Nouveau style was often corrupted out of good taste and good sense into a hodge-podge to suit less esthetic motives.

THE STUDY OF THE Art Nouveau movement has produced volumes, for it is a prodigious subject, but the style is an easy one to identify from the elements described: flowing, naturalistic movement. Animal and plant life were depicted, especially exotic forms: the dragonfly, the peacock, the full-blown rose, water nymphs rising from lilies, wood sprites blending into trees.

Some antiques dealers specialize in Art Nouveau objects, and the small grouping of novelties shown above is from the collection of one such dealer who has made quite a study of the period and looks for examples all over the country to buy and to sell.

FOR AN INEXPENSIVE but beautiful book on the subject, I recommend "All Color Book of Art Nouveau" by Geoffrey Warren (publisher Octopus Books, Ltd., London). It contains an excellent history and background of the movement, its foremost designers and artists, featuring furniture, jewelry, ceramics, glass, posters, architecture and 100 full-color pictures, describing them all. A fine addition to any antiquer's library, and as I said, inexpensive. It seems to me my copy was $4 at a local large book store. It is one of the best buys in books on antiques I have made, for just to see the breathtaking pictures is a real "trip." One can't help recognizing Art Nouveau and appreciating it by glancing through this thin — but crammed with goodies — volume.

Weddings

Linda Diener — Joseph Strezishar

One of the first things Joseph Strezishar did when he stepped onto the ground Jan. 5 after living 36 days atop a pole to raise funds to fight muscular dystrophy was to surprise Linda Bernice Diener with an engagement ring.

Although Joe spent both the Christmas and New Year holidays on the pole, Valentine's Day found him repeating marriage vows with Linda before a six-foot heart in the Des Plaines home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Diener. Joe is the son of Mrs. Ray DeBacker, Wheeling, and Jack Strezishar, Des Plaines.

The 6 p.m. candlelight, double ring service was followd by a reception, also in the Diener home, where a heart-shaped cake, complete with music box, red hearts, white doves and a water fountain, was served to the 60 guests.

FOR HER WEDDING Linda wore a beige voile gown trimmed in lace, and carried red roses with baby's breath. Matron of honor was Linda Bander, Villa Park, and flower girl was the bride's 6-year-old sister, Joelene. Mrs. Bander wore a red and white dotted swiss gown and carried white roses and baby's breath while Joelene wore a pink gown with white lace overskirt and carried a basket of rose petals.

Best man was Herman Edelson, Des Plaines. Also taking part in the ceremony were the bride's mother, who sang, and her sister, Teresa, who played the guitar and also sang. The groom's father played the accordion and sang at the reception.

The new Mrs. Strezishar is a '73 graduate of Maine East High, and the groom from Loyola Academy,

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Strezishar

Wilmette. He is employed in Wilmette by Homer's Ice Cream. Until her marriage Linda worked at Brookwood Nursing Home, Des Plaines.

The newlyweds are living in a Des Plaines apartment.

Debbie Luthi — Bruce E. Benson

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce E. Benson

In the Air Force and just returned from Alaska, Bruce E. Benson and his bride, the former Debbie Luthi, are now residing in New Mexico where Bruce is stationed at Holloman Air Force Base near Alamogardo.

The pair met at Conant High School from which Bruce graduated in '73.

Debbie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Luthi, Roselle, and Bruce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Benson, Hoffman Estates, were married Feb. 14 in Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, Hoffman Estates.

FOR THE 1 P. M. double ring service Debbie wore an ivory chiffon gown and baby's breath in her hair. She carried red and white carnations with baby's breath.

Attending Debbie was Pam Hopkins of Hoffman Estates, who wore a multi-colored blue silk gown and carried red and white carnations. Attending the groom was his brother Bill.

A reception for 40 guests was held in the home of the bride's parents.

A little dab won't do

A little dab here, a little dab there — there's more to wearing perfume than that, according to Arlene Dahl.

Miss Dahl, the former actress and chairman of Dahlia Parfums, Inc., which markets her new perfume Dahlia, is so taken with making the scent part of her, she hardly has time to leave the house.

She likes to spray it inside lampshades, on fur and inside a wig, and, of course, she wears it on all the old pulse points.

Then, "for sweet dreams," she says, "I sew little sachets into my pillows, and into my bra. Of course, you can also tuck a piece of cotton saturated with perfume in your bra and perfume lasts twice as long if you put it on your hair.

"You get brown spots if you apply perfume by hand and then go out in the sun," the redhead says, "but not if you spray it on."

A perfume, she says, should be "elegant and subtle and I think it should be basically floral."

Dahlia, which sells for $250 for a three and three-quarter ounce bottle, is a mixture of florals, spices, green grasses and citrus notes.

Pauline Trigere's perfume, trigere, retailing for $50 an ounce, contains notes of ylang ylang, a flowering tree native to Java and the Philippines, jasmine and rose, hyacinth, cut grass, oak moss and ambergris and musk.

The designer says, "I find it disturbing to use more than one scent because it gets into your clothes and remains."

In addition to spraying the scent around her hair, she also likes to dab solid cream trigere on her cheeks and forehead as a fragrant highlighter.

"You should wear more perfume at night when you're going into a room with a lot of cigarette smoke," she says. "But never spray any perfume on a silk garment because the oil stains."

To insure long life, perfume should be kept tightly lidded in its original glass container, in a cool place, away from sunlight.

Patricia McNett — Richard Conrad

A Valentine Day wedding in St. Theresa Catholic Church, Palatine, united Patricia Ann McNett of Palatine and Richard Anthony Conrad of Skokie. A reception for 160 guests followed at Old Orchard Country Club.

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Rosemarie McNett, Palatine, and Donald McNett, Roselle, chose her sister, Marilou, as maid of honor and her aunt, Patricia Hansen of Vail, Colo., as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Marguerite Radler, Skokie, a cousin of the bride, and Ann Petersen, Niles; flower girl was Beth Ann Hansen of Vail, another cousin.

The girls all wore emerald green velvet with green plaid capes and carried green carnations, pink Garnet roses and pink baby's breath.

THE BRIDE'S gown was of white chiffon with a lace bodice encrusted with braid, and with it she wore a fingertip veil attached to a Juliet cap of matching lace and seed pearls. Her bouquet was of green-tipped carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Her bridegroom, son of Mrs. Anna Conrad of Skokie and the late Peter Conrad, had his brother, Thomas, as best man. Groomsmen were Michael Hermes, Northbrook, Skip Nelson, Lansing, Mich., and Dean Swanson, Amery, Wis.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce H. Carlson

Martha Ann Booth — Bruce H. Carlson

A pink and burgundy color scheme was chosen for the Valentine Day wedding of Marcia Ann Booth and Bruce Harold Carlson of Rolling Meadows. The 5:30 p.m. candlelight rites in the Community Church of Rolling Meadows were followed by a dinner for 150 guests at the Sheraton Inn-Walden.

Marcia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Kenneth Anderson of Rolling Meadows, carried pink roses with white carnations in a nosegay bouquet, while her attendants' nosegays were of deep pink and white variegated carnations and deep red roses. The girls wore pink jersey halter gowns with burgundy velvet hooded jackets lined with pink marabou.

The bride's gown was of white sheer crepe trimmed in Venise floral appliques. Her triple-tiered veil flowed from a band of matching lace.

Marcia's sister, Janice Anderson of Port Angeles, Wash., was her maid of honor, with Mrs. Cathi Gilbert, Glenview, and Evelyn Koenig, Palatine, as bridesmaids. There were also two junior bridesmaids, Sharon Carlson, the groom's sister, and Bonnie Lofgren of Whitefish Bay, Wis., a cousin of the bride.

THE GROOM, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Carlson of Rolling Meadows, chose his two brothers and several local friends as attendants. John Ericson was best man; groomsmen included Alan and David Carlson, Mark Royal, Al Sabatka, Blaine Dahl and Steve Gallis.

Assisting the Rev. William Herman with the ceremony was Mrs. Anderson's cousin, the Rev. Paul Schippel of Neillsville, Wis.

The newlyweds are living in Mount Prospect since returning from a week's honeymoon in Hawaii. Marcia works for Symons Manufacturing, Des Plaines, and Bruce for Icon Metalcraft, Bensenville. She attended Forest View High and he went to Rolling Meadows High.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Cholesterol, fat not same thing

Would you please explain the difference between animal fat and cholesterol in the blood?

This, or variations of it, is a constantly recurring question from my readers. Cholesterol is not a fat; it is waxy-like substance produced principally by the liver in animals It is found in meats (minimal to moderate amount), butterfat, cheese, egg yolks and certain organ meats. It is never found in plants or plant products.

Would you please explainthe difference between animal fat and cholesterol in the blood?

Fat is not cholesterol whether it comes from animals or vegetables. It has a basic chemical difference. Animal fat tends to be made up of large amounts of saturated fat. This is a kind of fat that many heart specialists think is particularly apt to contribute to fatty-cholesterol deposits in the blood vessels. Animal fat also contains a large amount of unsaturated fat. However, very little of the animal fat, except in fish and chicken, is of the polyunsaturated variety that some heart specialists think is important in helping to prevent fatty cholesterol deposits.

Significant amounts of saturated fats are less often found in vegetable products. However, there are some notable exceptions, particularly coconut oil which is over 80 per cent saturated fat.

The fat that builds up in the blood combines with cholesterol and the combined particles may lodge in the walls of the arteries. Some of the fat may be cleaned out of the artery leaving a higher percentage of cholesterol stuck in the artery itself.

These fatty cholesterol deposits are the basis for the arterial disease associated with heart attacks, strokes and many other circulatory problems. For more information on cholesterol and blood fats send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclorosis. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

My husband and I eat fish at least three times a week — turbot, which is oily. We are on a low cholesterol diet and wonder if that fish is suitable.

Turbot belongs to the flat fish group of flounder, sole and sand dab. I don't have figures for turbot, but you can use the figures for flounder. These fish are relatively low in fat. Only about 10 per cent of their total calories is fat, which means that out of a 100 grams (3 one-half ounces) less than one gram is fat.

I have eaten turbot many times myself and have not thought of it as oily, but rather as a low-fat fish. As a general rule you can estimate that about one-third of the fat in fish is saturated fat, one-third monounsaturated fat and one-third polyunsaturated fat. That means it is one of the best foods you can use to provide items low in saturated fat from the meat basic food group. That's why fish is often recommended for diets that are designed for low-fat, low-cholesterol eating. I think you are wise to use fish regularly in your diet and feel that turbot is an excellent choice of the group. It is also economical and if you prepare it properly without adding a lot of fat to it, it is relatively low in fat.

One theft's enough to thin the wallet

Dear Dorothy: Responding to a woman who had her purse taken by a pickpocket, you said you have only one ID card in your wallet. I would like to know how one can get along without the important cards: driver's license, ID card at work, at least two or three credit cards for after-work shopping, car insurance card, check-cashing card for groceries and so on. How can one function day by day without these cards?—Eilene Stafford

One has to be ripped off once and go through the misery of umpteen phone calls notifying everybody to learn arbitrary short-cuts. Besides a driver's license, I've found that one major credit card plus a couple of blank checks do the trick. His nibs is more methodical. He flips through his wallet to see what cards he needs for his specific sortie into this on-the-tab life we've been forced into by the complexities of modern urban life.

Dear Dorothy: I keep running into recipes that call for "pastry flour." Where do you get this flour?—Annette Krueger

It isn't sold to the regular trade. It's a soft grade of wheat used by commercial bakers to make a more delicate product.

Dear Dorothy: Whenever sparkling soda is left over, I wring out kitchen. They really shine after the treatment.—Mrs. R. Wooley. They really shine after the treatment.—Mrs. R. C wooley.

Dear Dorothy: My family loves chicken tetrazzini. To give it a special touch, I boil the spaghetti in chicken broth — made with powdered chicken seasoning.—Bernina Swire

Dear Dorothy: I think you were unnecessarily closed-minded about Mrs. Donald Bell's suggestion concerning adding sugar to certain dishes for flavor. One teaspoon of sugar has approximately 17 calories. By adding this amount to a quantity of vegetables for four people, each serving has slightly more than four extra calories. This is much less than would result from any added sauces or butter.

Today's increase in average sugar consumption is due to vast amounts of soda, cookies and so on — not to a teaspoon of sugar serving an entire family. Obviously, someone who is diabetic or hypoglycemic must avoid sugar.—Kathy Immerman

I concede to holding some prejudices. My trouble is that almost everything I read (and by people I respect) says that sugar gives little but trouble. So constantly on my mind are not calories as such but wasted calories.

Cholesterol, fat not same thing

Would you please explain the difference between animal fat and cholesterol in the blood?

This, or variations of it, is a constantly recurring question from my readers. Cholesterol is not a fat; it is waxy-like substance produced principally by the liver in animals It is found in meats (minimal to moderate amount), butterfat, cheese, egg yolks and certain organ meats. It is never found in plants or plant products.

Would you please explainthe difference between animal fat and cholesterol in the blood?

Fat is not cholesterol whether it comes from animals or vegetables. It has a basic chemical difference. Animal fat tends to be made up of large amounts of saturated fat. This is a kind of fat that many heart specialists think is particularly apt to contribute to fatty-cholesterol deposits in the blood vessels. Animal fat also contains a large amount of unsaturated fat. However, very little of the animal fat, except in fish and chicken, is of the polyunsaturated variety that some heart specialists think is important in helping to prevent fatty cholesterol deposits.

Significant amounts of saturated fats are less often found in vegetable products. However, there are some notable exceptions, particularly coconut oil which is over 80 per cent saturated fat.

The fat that builds up in the blood combines with cholesterol and the combined particles may lodge in the walls of the arteries. Some of the fat may be cleaned out of the artery leaving a higher percentage of cholesterol stuck in the artery itself.

These fatty cholesterol deposits are the basis for the arterial disease associated with heart attacks, strokes and many other circulatory problems. For more information on cholesterol and blood fats send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 1-2, Cholesterol, Triglycerides, Blood Fats, Atherosclorosis. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Johnson's Motor Lodge and Restaurant north of the Kennedy Expressway at Cumberland Avenue.

President Ford's motorcade traveled past the heavily-damaged motel shortly after the tornado passed.

A large Howard Johnson's road sign was blown against the motel and a room on the southeast corner of the building was ripped open by the winds.

A nearby gas station attendant said he didn't see any funnel-shaped clouds but did watch one lone cloud get "lower and lower" as it crossed the expressway and struck the motel.

NO INJURIES were reported at the motel, although large plate glass windows were broken and sections of the roof were ripped away. Three women at an adjacent beauty salon were injured by flying glass and were taken to Resurrection Hospital.

Trees in the area were uprooted and windows were broken in stores and homes.

Four persons were admitted to Northlake Hospital and listed in serious condition; one of three persons admitted at Gottlieb Memorial Hospital in Melrose Park was in critical condition; one person was admitted to Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge in fair condition; and one person was admitted in good condition at Skokie Valley Hospital.

The heaviest property damage was reported in Niles, where about 50 industrial buildings were damaged.

In Morton Grove, the roof was blown from a building of the Lichtenwald Johnson Iron Works.

A TWISTER OR HIGH winds also ripped off part of the roof of the high school gymnasium at Montini Catholic High School in Lombard.

Jeanine Galasso, a secretary at the school, said the gym roof was "kind of rolled out of shape and blown into the football field.

"We were all sitting in the office when we heard this very loud roar and banging," she said. "But by the time we got out, it had passed."

She said none of the school's 723 students were in the gym and no one was injured there.

Two persons also were reported treated for minor injuries in Naperville when roofs blew off a house and a racquet club building.

Stocks suffer big price plunge in profit taking

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market nosedived Friday, a day after the Dow Jones industrial average cracked the 1,000 mark for the first time in three years.

The Dow, which finished Thursday's session at 1,003.31, its first close over 1,000 since Jan. 26, 1973, ended Friday's session down 15.67 points to 987.64, its biggest loss since Feb. 26 when it gave up 15.74.

Volume came to 26,020,000 shares, down from the 27,300,000 shares traded Thursday.

Analysts attributed the price dip to profit taking. They pointed out that the Dow, a bellwether of blue chip activity which carries a far greater significance to the general investing public, has picked up around 150 points since the first of the year and was due for some "shaking out."

Ecumenic movement in trouble?

In recent weeks, two widely separated events occurred which, taken together, might bear out the now widely held belief that the ecumenical movement is in deep trouble.

Those two events were the joint statement by the American Lutheran Church and Lutheran Church in America that while there were no theological barriers to the union of the two churches, merger was not a real topic for the two denominations' immediate agenda; and, secondly, the warning from orthodox theologians that Episcopal approval of ordaining women to the priesthood would seriously disrupt ecumenical relations between those two bodies.

World of religion

by David E. Anderson

In light of those vents — and others of which those are representative — it would seem that those attending the annual three-day National Workshop on Christian Unity would have little to cheer about.

DR. ROBERT T. HANDY of Union Theological Seminary, and one of the nation's most eminent church historians, may not have roused participants to cheers but he did provide them with the most cogent analyses of the ecumenical movement in this country and the tensions within which it moves.

And it was not a despairing portrait.

In two major presentations, Handy — as appropriate for a Bicentennial year — traced the development in America both of religious pluralism and religious freedom.

Both of these developments, he said, are positive and a central issue, for the Christian unity movement is "to seek ways in which it can be shown that moves toward Christian unity will not eliminate or destroy the actual diversities we have but will endeavor to engage them all in growth toward one another.

"The diversity at every level of Christian life is one of the reasons why there are no shortcuts to unity," he said.

AT THE SAME time, he said, one reason the ecumenical movement has appealed to many Christians is that it has placed great emphasis on the principle of religious freedom.

That principle, however, conflicts with some in the ecumenical movement who seek a "fully united Christianity . . ."

"There will always be those who will not or cannot accept a certain trend or decision of a united church and who will use their freedom to depart," he said.

However, in Handy's view, that does not mean unity is an impossible goal not to be pursued, as some would argue.

"Between the vast diversity we have now and a more coherent thought in no way uniformitarian or authoritarian ordering of the faithful in Christ, there is a vast amount of ecumenical territory to be covered," he said.

THAT TERRITORY includes the increase of theological dialogue, cooperation in missions in the world and even union "as soon as groups are freely drawn" to that idea.

Perhaps, then, such developments as occurred between the Orthodox and Episcopals and the inter-Lutheran statement, should not be taken as totally negative steps.

"My own conviction," Handy said, "is that neither our commitment to religious freedom or to Christian unity is so fragile that it cannot stand up under the public debates that must go on."

UOP foreign fund 'transfer' illegal?

UOP Inc., Des Plaines, has disclosed in a report to the Securities and Exchange Commission that one of its foreign subsidiaries paid some $250,000 to administrative personnel in an unnamed foreign country, in apparent violation of the country's laws.

The "transfer" of the equivalent in local currency of $50,000 was apprently made in the years 1971 through 1975 "for the purpose of securing benefits," the UOP statement said.

The audit committee of UOP's board of directors also learned from independent auditors that payment equivalent to $40,000 was made to a "third party" in the same country. The payment, destined for an official in that country, was transferred to a cash account.

THE UNDISCLOSED subsidiary was acquired six years ago and its average annual sales amount to $1.2 million, the UOP reports said. The voluntary disclosure was listed in the SEC form 8-K under the heading, "other materially important events."

UOP said the payments did not involve top management or tax deductions. "The company does not deem the above payments material in relation to the company's operations as a whole or that they have any bearing on the company's management of its affairs," UOP said.

"This action was in direct violation of UOP's policies which existed then and exist now," the company said Friday. "These policies have been both stated and published by personal and group meetings by James V. Crawford, president and chief executive officer, with each division of the company."

UOP's policy prohibits written or verbal agreements for illegal payments, kickbacks or bribes; and requires documentation of all payment transactions, which may be publicly disclosed and written agreements with sales representatives or consultants.

Voluntary disclosure of questionable activities in the U.S. and foreign countries has been made by a number of firms. A majority interest in UOP is owned by the Signal Companies.

NO INJURIES were reported at the motel, although large plate glass windows were broken and sections of the roof were ripped away. Three women at an adjacent beauty salon were injured by flying glass and were taken to Resurrection Hospital.

Trees in the area were uprooted and windows were broken in stores and homes.

Four persons were admitted to Northlake Hospital and listed in serious condition; one of three persons admitted at Gottlieb Memorial Hospital in Melrose Park was in critical condition; one person was admitted to Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge in fair condition; and one person was admitted in good condition at Skokie Valley Hospital.

The heaviest property damage was reported in Niles, where about 50 industrial buildings were damaged.

In Morton Grove, the roof was blown from a building of the Lichtenwald Johnson Iron Works.

A TWISTER OR HIGH winds also ripped off part of the roof of the high school gymnasium at Montini Catholic High School in Lombard.

Jeanine Galasso, a secretary at the school, said the gym roof was "kind of rolled out of shape and blown into the football field.

"We were all sitting in the office when we heard this very loud roar and banging," she said. "But by the time we got out, it had passed."

She said none of the school's 723 students were in the gym and no one was injured there.

Two persons also were reported treated for minor injuries in Naperville when roofs blew off a house and a racquet club building.

Stocks suffer big price plunge in profit taking

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market nosedived Friday, a day after the Dow Jones industrial average cracked the 1,000 mark for the first time in three years.

The Dow, which finished Thursday's session at 1,003.31, its first close over 1,000 since Jan. 26, 1973, ended Friday's session down 15.67 points to 987.64, its biggest loss since Feb. 26 when it gave up 15.74.

Volume came to 26,020,000 shares, down from the 27,300,000 shares traded Thursday.

Analysts attributed the price dip to profit taking. They pointed out that the Dow, a bellwether of blue chip activity which carries a far greater significance to the general investing public, has picked up around 150 points since the first of the year and was due for some "shaking out."

Ecumenic movement in trouble?

World of religion
by David E. Anderson

In recent weeks, two widely separated events occurred which, taken together, might bear out the now widely held belief that the ecumenical movement is in deep trouble.

Those two events were the joint statement by the American Lutheran Church and Lutheran Church in America that while there were no theological barriers to the union of the two churches, merger was not a real topic for the two denominations' immediate agenda; and, secondly, the warning from orthodox theologians that Episcopal approval of ordaining women to the priesthood would seriously disrupt ecumenical relations between those two bodies.

In light of those vents — and others of which those are representative — it would seem that those attending the annual three-day National Workshop on Christian Unity would have little to cheer about.

DR. ROBERT T. HANDY of Union Theological Seminary, and one of the nation's most eminent church historians, may not have roused participants to cheers but he did provide them with the most cogent analyses of the ecumenical movement in this country and the tensions within which it moves.

And it was not a despairing portrait.

In two major presentations, Handy — as appropriate for a Bicentennial year — traced the development in America both of religious pluralism and religious freedom.

Both of these developments, he said, are positive and a central issue, for the Christian unity movement is "to seek ways in which it can be shown that moves toward Christian unity will not eliminate or destroy the actual diversities we have but will endeavor to engage them all in growth toward one another.

"The diversity at every level of Christian life is one of the reasons why there are no shortcuts to unity," he said.

AT THE SAME time, he said, one reason the ecumenical movement has appealed to many Christians is that it has placed great emphasis on the principle of religious freedom.

That principle, however, conflicts with some in the ecumenical movement who seek a "fully united Christianity . . ."

"There will always be those who will not or cannot accept a certain trend or decision of a united church and who will use their freedom to depart," he said.

However, in Handy's view, that does not mean unity is an impossible goal not to be pursued, as some would argue.

"Between the vast diversity we have now and a more coherent thought in no way uniformitarian or authoritarian ordering of the faithful in Christ, there is a vast amount of ecumenical territory to be covered," he said.

THAT TERRITORY includes the increase of theological dialogue, cooperation in missions in the world and even union "as soon as groups are freely drawn" to that idea.

Perhaps, then, such developments as occurred between the Orthodox and Episcopals and the inter-Lutheran statement, should not be taken as totally negative steps.

"My own conviction," Handy said, "is that neither our commitment to religious freedom or to Christian unity is so fragile that it cannot stand up under the public debates that must go on."

UOP foreign fund 'transfer' illegal?

UOP Inc., Des Plaines, has disclosed in a report to the Securities and Exchange Commission that one of its foreign subsidiaries paid some $250,000 to administrative personnel in an unnamed foreign country, in apparent violation of the country's laws.

The "transfer" of the equivalent in local currency of $50,000 was apprently made in the years 1971 through 1975 "for the purpose of securing benefits," the UOP statement said.

The audit committee of UOP's board of directors also learned from independent auditors that payment equivalent to $40,000 was made to a "third party" in the same country. The payment, destined for an official in that country, was transferred to a cash account.

THE UNDISCLOSED subsidiary was acquired six years ago and its average annual sales amount to $1.2 million, the UOP reports said. The voluntary disclosure was listed in the SEC form 8-K under the heading, "other materially important events."

UOP said the payments did not involve top management or tax deductions. "The company does not deem the above payments material in relation to the company's operations as a whole or that they have any bearing on the company's management of its affairs," UOP said.

"This action was in direct violation of UOP's policies which existed then and exist now," the company said Friday. "These policies have been both stated and published by personal and group meetings by James V. Crawford, president and chief executive officer, with each division of the company."

UOP's policy prohibits written or verbal agreements for illegal payments, kickbacks or bribes; and requires documentation of all payment transactions, which may be publicly disclosed and written agreements with sales representatives or consultants.

Voluntary disclosure of questionable activities in the U.S. and foreign countries has been made by a number of firms. A majority interest in UOP is owned by the Signal Companies.

Pencils not really made from lead

Andy sends an award to Rose Hoesing, 12, of Hartington, Neb., for her question:
IF LEAD IS SO HEAVY, WHY ARE PENCILS SO LIGHT?

Each year, the population of the United States uses up 2 billion pencils, about double the number of all other writing implements sold. Pencils are inexpensive, portable, simple to operate and the marks they make are easy to erase. Unlike other writing tools, they do not run out of ink or skip — just sharpen them once in a while and they are ready to go.

Pencils are called lead pencils because in the early days of recorded history, lead was used as a writing material. Modern-day pencils, however, are made from a mixture of graphite and clay. Graphite, a soft form of the element carbon, is a relative of the hardest mineral known to man — diamond.

The history of the lead pencils goes back more than 200 years, to Greek and Roman times. In fact, the word for pencil is derived from a Latin word meaning "little brush." At that time, the pencil was a small, thin piece of lead. Lead is a substance that will leave a mark on almost anything, although the mark it makes is faint and not very dependable.

In the 16th century, a new material was found that could be used in place of lead. This substance is called graphite. It is a form of carbon and very useful material. Besides its use in pencils, it is an ingredient in lubricants, certain kinds of steel, paint, polishes and brushes in electric motors.

Graphite by itself, howeveris as unsuitable for pencils as lead. To keep the graphite from wearing away too rapidly, it is mixed with a fine clay. It is the amount of clay that determines how hard the pencil lead will be. A hard lead will have more clay in it than a soft lead. Colored pencils contain no graphite at all, and are a mixture of clay, wax or chalk and coloring materials.

To make a pencil the useful tool it is, it needs a wooden sheath. And the most common wood for this purpose is cedar. A slat of cedar is cut in proper pencil lengths and about nine pencil widths. Grooves are then cut in a lengthwise direction. After placing the pencil leads in these grooves, another slat of cedar is glued on top, making a sort of pencil sandwich. The whole thing is then cut into nine pencils.

After pencils are cut, they are sanded, painted, varnished and the name of the maker is stamped into them. If they are to have an eraser, a brass rim is added. The eraser is fitted in and the brass rim is squeezed tight, so the eraser doesn't fall out the first time you use it.

Lead is about five times heavier than graphite, so you can see that if we used real lead in pencils instead of graphite and clay, they would be quite a bit heavier.

Andy sends an award to Susan Schroeder, 10, of Cudahy, Wis., for her question:
WHAT CAUSES METEORITES TO BURN UP?

Outer space is teeming with minute solid particles. Scientifically they are known as meteoroids before they fall, as meteors while they are falling, and as meteorites after landing. Experts explain that these tiny specks of matter are visible only when they come into contact with the upper atmosphere of the earth. The streak of light, it is supposed, is due to the enormous heat generated by friction. Actually, when we see them, they are burning up and traveling about 30 miles a second at a distance of from 40 to 80 miles from the earth.

Meteorites, or so-called falling stars are seldom larger than a grain of sand, but some weighing from 40 to 50 tons have been found, and there is evidence that meteorites of enormous size have fallen on the earth. Volume for volume these tokens from outer space are much heavier than rocks. Many of them consist of nickel and iron, and in some cases are 90% iron. Probably the most massive body of all reaching the earth's surface was the meteorite responsible for the Arizona Crater, which is three-fourths of a mile in diameter and 600 feet deep.

That's the exact time it takes for a U. S. Savings Bond to mature.

Unfortunately, most people still think it takes 10 years. Or 7. Wrong. It's exactly 5 years.

Of course, if you want to keep your money earning, there's a 10-year extension privilege beyond maturity.

We'd appreciate it if you'd help us clear up the confusion. Next time somebody tells you it takes 10 years for a Savings Bond to mature, smile indulgently. And then show him this ad.

Now E Bonds pay 6% interest when held to maturity of 5 years (4½% the first year). Lost, stolen or destroyed Bonds can be replaced if records are provided. When needed, Bonds can be cashed at your bank. Interest is not subject to state or local income taxes, and federal tax may be deferred until redemption.

Take stock in America.

Hersey, Conant fall from tourney

by ART MUGALIAN

Like a bad spell of stormy weather, the Niles West Indians drove through the finals of the Prospect Sectional Basketball Tournament Friday, raining down hard on Hersay's Swet Sixteen plans and scattering the Huskie faithful in their violent wake.

On the strength of Bob Zyburt's 27 points and John Bruner's 22, the Indians pounded Hersey 79-66 to advance to the Supers next Tuesday at Northwestern University. Their opponent will be Loyola Academy.

Showing no ill effects from the tornado which tore through the Niles neighborhood earlier in the day, the Indians rather played as though they were positively charged, shooting 69 per cent from the floor.

And Niles shut off Hersey's vaunted fast break.

The Indians did it by controlling the boards as the 6-6 Zyburt and his burly 6-5 teammate Bruner hoarded nearly every rebound in sight, sealing the tall Huskies away from the action. Zyburt had 14 rebounds and Bruner nine as the Indians maintained a 32-20 team edge.

"The two key things we wanted to do were stop Hersey's fast break and keep them off the offensive boards," said Niles West coach Billy Schnurr. "We played man-to-man defense throughout and we put pressure on their guards — I think our guards are a little quicker and a little more experienced than theirs."

The Indians' backcourters, 5-8 Tommy Arns and 5-11 Marty Fabian, directed the game's tempo. From the very start, they along with 5-11 forward Dave Schmidt located Bruner and Zyburt inside, mostly with pinpoint lob passes.

When the big men got the ball — usually between Hersey's Tom Burzak and Jay McDermott — they knew where to put it and how to get it there.

"Those two big kids are good shooters and smart players," said Huskie coach Roger Steingraber, whose winningest Hersey team ever finished the year at 21-8. "I was hoping we could stop those lob passes inside with a little more pressure on the passer and some help from the backside."

At Prospect

With 4:05 left in the first quarter McDermott, Hersey's 6-8 forward, swished a short turnaround jumper to knot the score at 8-8. But a moment later Zyburt converted a three-point play and Niles was never headed again.

The Huskies went scoreless for more than two minutes at the end of that period while the Indians tallied 11 straight points to open a 26-12 lead. Fabian drove the lane for a layup in heavy traffic at :30, then hit a long jumper at the buzzer.

"They just beat us in every department," admitted Steingraber. "I really thought we would be able to play with them. I thought we'd be able to board with them. I thought we'd be able to stop that inside stuff to their big guys."

When Arns wasn't feeding the big men, he was lofting his patented rainbow jump shot from practically all points on the court. "You can't let him sit on that 15-foot baseline shot all night," lamented Steingraber.

Though they trailed most of the night by anywhere from 12 to 18 points, the Huskies closed to within 11 with a little over seven minutes left on a basket by Joe Pusatera from an assist by Tom (T.R.) Frye.

But Bruner muscled his way inside for a three-point play and Zyburt followed with another bucket to boost the margin to 16 again, 66-50, with 6:40 to play.

Frye finished with 20 points to lead Hersey and reserve guard Scott Topczewski had 12. McDermott scored 10 before fouling out, Burzak had nine and Clyde Glass eight.

For Niles West, now 23-4, the next test is the Super-sectionals. The Indians stormed past Hersey with flying colors.

"They were a little tougher inside than I thought," said Hersey's Steingraber, who took his team farther than some people figured, but no farther than that.

Niles' John Bruner frustrates a Hersey shooter as the Huskies fall in the Prospect sectional, 79-66.

Powerful Niles West realizes 1973 dream— returning to Evanston

by PAUL LOGAN

Back in 1973 when they were just little guys, Bobby Zyburt and Johnny Bruner went to the Evanston Super-Sectional.

Zyburt, Bruner and the rest of the Niles West freshman teammates went as spectators. They rooted for the Indians' varsity team against New Trier East.

"It was shocking," recalled big Bob Zyburt, who has grown to a sturdy 6-foot-6, Friday night. "They were up by 21 and lost!"

A fine '73 Niles team lost a 29-8 lead and eventually the ball game — one of the most shocking turnarounds in state supersectional history. The memory made a lasting impression on these young Indians.

"The team dreamed of going down there again," remembered this talented Niles forward.

Thanks to his performance and that of his high jumping partner, big John Bruner, Niles West will be giving the Northwestern basketball court another try.

Dominating both ends of the court at the Prospect Sectional title game, the Zyburt-Bruner combo worked over the Hersey Huskies en route to a 79-66 victory.

Bruner, a 6-5 center, played much taller than that because of his 31-inch vertical leaping ability. His 24 points and Zyburt's 27 were scored at close range.

And when they weren't pouring in the points, they were grabbing nearly every rebound in sight. Zyburt's 14 and Bruner's nine rebounds surpassed the whole Hersey team's output of 20. But neither senior star was too concerned with the statistics, just the final score.

"Nobody cares who scores," said Bruner, who turned serious after admitting he was the clown of the team. "We try and play a nice hard defense."

The handsome blonde never had the chance to explain Niles' teamwork style in greater detail, but all those fans who packed Prospect's fieldhouse will remember.

'Hard defense' meant taking away what Hersey wanted to do most — run all night with its superb fastbreak attack.

"We tried," said Hersey's standout guard, T.R. Frye, whose eyes revealed the disappointment of the loss. "That's our game. They knew it and we knew it."

But the Indians completely stopped the Huskies' racehorse tactics.

Frye, who is usually content to assist his taller teammates, attempted to put some life into their frustrated offense. He bounced his 5-9 frame all over the court for 24 points — a season high.

Elgin advances with 70-54 romp

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Bill Chesbrough and his Elgin Maroons won the school's 15th sectional basketball title Friday night, easily disposing of the overmatched Conant Cougars, 70-54.

The win pleased the veteran Elgin coach enough to begin a personal countdown.

"Four more to go," Chesbrough told the Maroons in the lockerroom. The information that they need four wins for the state championship did not spark his team; rather the Maroons (24-4) seemed to take it all in stride.

As they did the Conant Cougars.

The Cougars, who finished the season with a 17-9 record, were in the game through the first quarter.

Although they never led, Conant was tied at six-all primarily because they controlled the speed of the game and kept Elgin from running.

Rob Totten, the only Conant starter who will return next season, knotted the score for the first and last time with a 20-footer from the top of the key.

Totten finished with 10 points but couldn't drive to the inside and feed off as he had in the Cougars' win over DeKalb Wednesday.

Without the inside shot, Conant's offense came down to Pete Scaffidi's outside shooting. He hit only six of 22 from the field but led the Cougars in scoring with 17 points.

The way the Maroons played Friday, with the top-ranked teams in the state all sitting on the sidelines, they have to be considered when state championships are discussed.

At Elgin

"I liked the way we looked tonight," Chesbrough said. "We had great teamwork but this team can't seem to blow anybody out."

Conant may disagree with that but taking Chesbrough at his word it would be demoralizing to face this team when they did put their game together.

Conant simply did not have the physical strength and quickness to play with Elgin. The disparity started to show in the second quarter when the Maroons began to control the backboards.

"The first half offensive boards just killed us," said Conant head coach Dick Redlinger.

"We knew we were going to be outmanned when we came in here," Redlinger continued. "We figured they'd be in for a letdown after beating Weber."

Elgin outgunned the Cougars 16-4 to start the second quarter and except for a brief flurry near the end of the game when Conant chopped the lead to 12 points, the game belonged to the Maroons.

The Maroons' spurt was just simply beautiful basketball. The ball would come off the backboard, five men would hammer the ball downcourt and then whip the ball around until the first man to get free put it up.

Elgin's offense has a rare dimension in 6-7 center Randy Roland. Besides being a towering leaper (he grabbed seven rebounds despite playing up high most of the game) and an excellent shooter (5-for-9 from the field), Roland is also the best passer on a team that is crammed with good passers.

Roland stations himself at the free throw line. He takes a pass from guard Ron Clark, spins and snaps a pass either to 6-2 forward Butch Douglas (who is waiting for the ball up above the rim) or to 6-7 Tim Hale, (who has slipped free on the other side of the basket.)

Douglas is the type of player that dominates any game he is in. He has the smooth flow to his game that marks the kid who grew up in the parks where nothing counts except putting the ball in the hole.

He pushed in 21 points to lead all scorers and snatched 15 rebounds. Clark added 16 points and Hale 15...

Ron Sulaski finished his career at Conant with 13 points and five rebounds. Frisch and Totten both hit for 10.

Conant never gave up, despite being out of the game most of the way. They ran their offense, worked for good shots and tried to stay on the boards.

"We're all proud of them," Redlinger said.

Chesbrough was looking ahead.

"I figure we'll play Oak Park in the supersectional," Chesbrough said. (He was right. Oak Park blasted DeLaSalle.) "We've got four more to go but they're going to be the tough ones."

No losers for Conant; goals were accomplished

by BOB GALLAS

Cougar head coach Dick Redlinger wiped a play diagram from the blackboard in the Conant dressing room.

It was quiet, as it usually is in a losing team's locker room. But there were no losers in the room.

Assistant coach Jerry Cunningham was the first to speak.

"Years from now, you may tend to look back upon this game and wonder if you maybe had played a little harder, if you might have won," Cunningham said. "But you played as hard as you could. You've had a helluva season."

True to form, the unheralded bunch from Conant had never given up, despite being down by as much as 22 points in the fourth quarter. Cougar mentor Dick Redlinger may have been the losing coach, but you could see the pride in his eyes.

"We set our goals at the beginning of the season," Redlinger began in a voice that didn't carry much past the huddle of players, "and you accomplished every one of them."

"You wanted to play in the conference championship game and you did," Redlinger continued. "You wanted to win the regional and you did. You wanted to make it to the sectional finals and you did."

Those goals may have sounded a bit high to some at the beginning of the season when the Conant squad was coming together. Admittedly short on individual talent, the Cougars made up for it with team play and a never-give-up attitude.

Picked by most to finish near the bottom of the south division of the Mid-Suburban League, Conant scrapped and hustled its way to a 17-9 season record, and nobody now was making excuses.

"They were the quickest team we've seen. Every place I went, they were there," Cougar Pete Scaffidi said.

"Every time we tried to pass inside, they'd (Elgin) would just deflect it out," Scaffidi said. Scaffidi had kept his team from being blown out early in the second half, hitting the first eight points for the Cougars in the third period

by ART MUGALIAN

Like a bad spell of stormy weather, the Niles West Indians drove through the finals of the Prospect Sectional Basketball Tournament Friday, raining down hard on Hersay's Swet Sixteen plans and scattering the Huskie faithful in their violent wake.

On the strength of Bob Zyburt's 27 points and John Bruner's 22, the Indians pounded Hersey 79-66 to advance to the Supers next Tuesday at Northwestern University. Their opponent will be Loyola Academy.

Showing no ill effects from the tornado which tore through the Niles neighborhood earlier in the day, the Indians rather played as though they were positively charged, shooting 69 per cent from the floor.

And Niles shut off Hersey's vaunted fast break.

The Indians did it by controlling the boards as the 6-6 Zyburt and his burly 6-5 teammate Bruner hoarded nearly every rebound in sight, sealing the tall Huskies away from the action. Zyburt had 14 rebounds and Bruner nine as the Indians maintained a 32-20 team edge.

"The two key things we wanted to do were stop Hersey's fast break and keep them off the offensive boards," said Niles West coach Billy Schnurr. "We played man-to-man defense throughout and we put pressure on their guards — I think our guards are a little quicker and a little more experienced than theirs."

The Indians' backcourters, 5-8 Tommy Arns and 5-11 Marty Fabian, directed the game's tempo. From the very start, they along with 5-11 forward Dave Schmidt located Bruner and Zyburt inside, mostly with pinpoint lob passes.

When the big men got the ball — usually between Hersey's Tom Burzak and Jay McDermott — they knew where to put it and how to get it there.

"Those two big kids are good shooters and smart players," said Huskie coach Roger Steingraber, whose winningest Hersey team ever finished the year at 21-8. "I was hoping we could stop those lob passes inside with a little more pressure on the passer and some help from the backside."

At Prospect

With 4:05 left in the first quarter McDermott, Hersey's 6-8 forward, swished a short turnaround jumper to knot the score at 8-8. But a moment later Zyburt converted a three-point play and Niles was never headed again.

The Huskies went scoreless for more than two minutes at the end of that period while the Indians tallied 11 straight points to open a 26-12 lead. Fabian drove the lane for a layup in heavy traffic at :30, then hit a long jumper at the buzzer.

"They just beat us in every department," admitted Steingraber. "I really thought we would be able to play with them. I thought we'd be able to board with them. I thought we'd be able to stop that inside stuff to their big guys."

When Arns wasn't feeding the big men, he was lofting his patented rainbow jump shot from practically all points on the court. "You can't let him sit on that 15-foot baseline shot all night," lamented Steingraber.

Though they trailed most of the night by anywhere from 12 to 18 points, the Huskies closed to within 11 with a little over seven minutes left on a basket by Joe Pusatera from an assist by Tom (T.R.) Frye.

But Bruner muscled his way inside for a three-point play and Zyburt followed with another bucket to boost the margin to 16 again, 66-50, with 6:40 to play.

Frye finished with 20 points to lead Hersey and reserve guard Scott Topczewski had 12. McDermott scored 10 before fouling out, Burzak had nine and Clyde Glass eight.

For Niles West, now 23-4, the next test is the Super-sectionals. The Indians stormed past Hersey with flying colors.

"They were a little tougher inside than I thought," said Hersey's Steingraber, who took his team farther than some people figured, but no farther than that.

Powerful Niles West realizes 1973 dream– returning to Evanston

by PAUL LOGAN

Back in 1973 when they were just little guys, Bobby Zyburt and Johnny Bruner went to the Evanston Super-Sectional.

Zyburt, Bruner and the rest of the Niles West freshman teammates went as spectators. They rooted for the Indians' varsity team against New Trier East.

"It was shocking," recalled big Bob Zyburt, who has grown to a sturdy 6-foot-6, Friday night. "They were up by 21 and lost!"

A fine '73 Niles team lost a 29-8 lead and eventually the ball game — one of the most shocking turnarounds in state supersectional history. The memory made a lasting impression on these young Indians.

"The team dreamed of going down there again," remembered this talented Niles forward.

Thanks to his performance and that of his high jumping partner, big John Bruner, Niles West will be giving the Northwestern basketball court another try.

NCAA tourney opens; DePaul, Virginia battle

Indiana and Rutgers, unbeaten but as yet uncrowned, begin the do-or-die segment of their schedule today when they meet schools they already have conquered on the opening day of the NCAA basketball championships.

A field of 32 teams will be in action at eight sites with the survivors advancing to the regional semifinals next Thursday. The finals will be played at Philadelphia March 29.

The top-ranked Hoosiers, who have rolled up an incredible 57-game winning streak during regular season competition, including a 26-0 record this year, open against St. John's (23-5) in a Mideast regional game at South Bend, Ind.

Rutgers, ranked No. 3 and carrying a 28-0 mark, goes against Princeton, which is 22-4, in an Eastern Regional at Providence, R.I.

Earlier this season, Indiana had to struggle to gain a 76-69 victory over St. John's in the championship round of the Holiday Festival in New York while Rutgers owns a 72-65 triumph over Princeton.

"We know some things first hand about them, but they know some things about us and one cancels the other," Hoosier Coach Bobby Knight said of St. John's. "And where our players have the proper respect for them and recognize what they must do to win, the same is true for St. John's."

When it comes to the playoffs, UCLA can never be discounted even if its season hasn't been up to its regular standards. The Bruins, who have won the NCAA crown 10 of the past 12 years, had what was for them a sub-par 23-4 record, but can start making it up when they begin defense of their championship against San Diego State in the West Regional at Eugene, Ore.

The oddsmakers certainly haven't forgotten UCLA, and the Bruins were listed as co-second choices at 3-1 along with second-ranked Marquette. Indiana was posted the 9-5 favorite with Rutgers at 4-1.

Marquette, with a 25-1 record, including a 21-game winning streak, is an overwhelming favorite in its opener against Western Kentucky at Dayton, Ohio. The Warriors are looking ahead to an expected showdown with Indiana in the Mideast regional finals at Baton Rouge, La., March 20.

"I'd like to get at Indiana as soon as possible," said Marquette Coach Al McGuire. "The sooner the better. Too many things can happen in a tournament if you're looking ahead.

"Indiana's been close to getting beat a few times and I think they can be tightening some."

As for the game against Western Kentucky, which posted a 20-8 record, McGuire said, "We don't think it's a piece of cake. We know Western Kentucky is a great ball club."

Among other members of the top 10, fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas plays Boise State at Eugene; sixth-ranked North Carolina plays seventh-ranked Alabama at Dayton; eighth-ranked Notre Dame plays Cincinnati at Lawrence, Kan.; ninth-ranked Michigan plays Wichita State at Denton, Tex.; and 10th-ranked Washington plays Missouri at Lawrence, Kan.

Blue Demons are young, 'just beginning to jell'

DePaul's young Blue Demons, making their first NCAA tournament appearance in 11 years, clash tonight with the most surprising entry in the field.

The Virginia Cavaliers come into the Charlotte, N.C. showdown fresh from a stunning Atlantic Coast Conference tournament victory. Virginia knocked off North Carolina State, Maryland and North Carolina on successive nights.

Coach Ray Meyer of DePaul says the biggest program his team faces is Virginia's Wally Walker. Walker, a 6-7 senior, scored 73 points in the ACC Tournament and was chosen most valuable player.

"They (Virginia) do a lot of picking for Wally Walker and that's going to be a problem for us, whether we play him man for man or switch," Meyer said. "If a guy picks him up, he might jump right over him. With all the picking they do, it'll be hard to stay with him."

Meyer says his team is young and is "just beginning to jell." The Demons, who finished with a 19-8 mark, will be depending on 6-11 sophomore center Dave Corzine from Hersey High School to keep them in the game. DePaul starts a freshman, two sophomores and two juniors.

"We haven't proved ourselves yet," Meyer said. "When we're good we're very good. But there's no middle ground for us."

Virginia head man Terry Holland, former coach at Davidson, will be playing in familiar surroundings and will be out to prove the Cavaliers' ACC tournament victory was not a fluke.

"We can't be thinking past the DePaul game," he said. "That's not how we won the tournament. If we start thinking 'Gee, wouldn't it be great to be in Philadelphia (for the NCAA finals),' we aren't going to be there."

The game will be broadcast on WWMM-FM, 92.7, starting at 8:00 p.m. with The Ray Meyer Show and televised on Channel 44 starting at 8:05 p.m.

Baseball talks break off

Major league players, in the wake of suspending all voluntary spring training workouts, Friday broke off negotiations with club owners after two hours of labor discussions. The sudden decision by the players touched off speculation that any settlement of the baseball impasse would not be forthcoming before next week. The players said they would reconvene talks at 10 a.m. Saturday.

"We are disappointed any time progress in the negotiations is curtailed," said National League presidnet Chub Feeney. "Apparently, the players felt they had our sword and now they want our horses." The biggest stumbling block in the negotiations facing the parties is how to resolve the Peter Seitz decision which has ruled baseball controversial reserve clause illegal, thus making every player not under contract a free agent. At present, 193 players remain unsigned.

Sox turf up for grabs

A rabid Chicago White Sox fan could pick up enough souvenir artificial turf Saturday or Sunday to carpet a room or backyard. The Sox issued an invitation to any person, fan or otherwise, who wants a piece of Comiskey Park's artificial turf infield simply to show up. He or she can take home as much of the turf as they can dig up and carry. Digging up won't be necessary really, a team spokesman said.

Nate Archibald scored 22 points to lead the Kansas City Kings to a 95-73 victory over the Chicago Bulls Friday night, the seventh loss for the Bulls in the last nine games.

The victory extended the Kings' winning streak to three games with their fourth win in the last five.

Both teams were anemic in their first period shooting, Chicago with a 22 per cent figure on six of 27 field goal attempts and the Kings 39 per cent with nine of 23 to build a 19-14 lead.

Kansas City turned it around in the second quarter for a 46-33 halftime lead with a 55 per cent shooting average for the second quarter compared to 31 per cent for Chicago.

The Kings lead soared to 20 points in the third quarter on a basket by Ollie Johnson with two and a half minutes left for a 68-48 margin and coasted the rest of the way.

Mickey Johnson led Chicago with 18 points and Bob Love played 23 minutes with zero for 15 from the floor. He wound up with only one point.

In other NBA action, guard Pete Maravich scored 27 points and forward Bud Stallworth added 21 to spark the New Orleans Jazz to a 110-101 victory over the Portland Trailblazers.

Calvin Murphy scored 32 points and had eight assists to keep Houston's playoff hopes alive with a 113-100 victory over the Buffalo Braves.

Coniel Norman, with three seconds remaining, hit a 17-foot jumper that gave the Philadelphia 76ers a 109-107 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Al Eberhard scored six points and had seven rebounds to lead Detroit to a 117-101 win over Milwaukee and pull the Pistons to within two games of the Bucks in the NBA Midwest Division.

and finishing with 17 for the night.

Redlinger was proud of his charges and it showed. "I can't remember a game this year where they quit," he said, stuffing a late arriving packet of good luck telegrams in his pocket. "We knew we were going to be outmanned when we came in here. We'd seen them play. But we also thought we could beat them.

"They (Conant) were down by 20 and cut it to 12. Then three straight calls went against us, I thought. I'm not saying we'd have made the baskets, but that just took the wind out of our sails," he said.

It had been a satisfying season for the Conant coach, who for the third time in five years, had his team in the sectionals. And, for the second time, had to battle Elgin for the sectional title.

"You boys have nothing to be ashamed of," Redlinger was concluding his post game talk. "You came back and played a beautiful game at the end."

And then, true to form, the ever present bit of a con man in Redlinger came out as he said with a straight face, "We're proud of you for what you did.

"So I'm going to give you tomorrow off."

Niles gets return trip to Evanston

"I was gunning," he said humbly. But hitting 11 of 15 shots is the kind of gunning accuracy all his teammates should have had.

Offsetting Frye's fine showing was Niles' Tommy Arns. The 5-8 pepperpot penetrated inside and popped from the outside for 17 to balance the two big boys' output. He and his several backcourt teammates were everywhere they shouldn't have been as far as the Huskies were concerned.

One tribute to Hersey and Coach Roger Steingraber was the way the Huskies didn't give up. Several times Niles appeared ready to blow them out (38-20 in the second quarter and 48-30 in the third), but couldn't.

"That's one of the things that's been disturbing to me a ll season," said Billy Schnurr, Niles' head coach. "When we get a 14 or 15 point lead, we seem to ease up." But he added this in their behalf:

"It's awfully hard to expect any team to play a full 32 minutes with the intensity we ask of these kids."

When you've only lost four games (by two points or less) out of 27, who's going to complain very much?

"It's wonderful," said Schnurr of his return visit to Evanston's Super-Sectional. Although he's a veteran of 17 varsity seasons (241-137) and is widely respected for his coaching ability, he has never taken a team downstate. His only other chance was the 1973 shocker.

"Certainly that was a big disappointment," he remembered.

Niles will be meeting Loyola, a team the Indians defeated earlier in the season, 69-65.

Maybe next Tuesday's effort will help erase the '73 nightmare forever. With talent like Big Bob and Big John, it looks like a sure thing.

Rutgers, ranked No. 3 and carrying a 28-0 mark, goes against Princeton, which is 22-4, in an Eastern Regional at Providence, R.I.

Earlier this season, Indiana had to struggle to gain a 76-69 victory over St. John's in the championship round of the Holiday Festival in New York while Rutgers owns a 72-65 triumph over Princeton.

"We know some things first hand about them, but they know some things about us and one cancels the other," Hoosier Coach Bobby Knight said of St. John's. "And where our players have the proper respect for them and recognize what they must do to win, the same is true for St. John's."

When it comes to the playoffs, UCLA can never be discounted even if its season hasn't been up to its regular standards. The Bruins, who have won the NCAA crown 10 of the past 12 years, had what was for them a sub-par 23-4 record, but can start making it up when they begin defense of their championship against San Diego State in the West Regional at Eugene, Ore.

The oddsmakers certainly haven't forgotten UCLA, and the Bruins were listed as co-second choices at 3-1 along with second-ranked Marquette. Indiana was posted the 9-5 favorite with Rutgers at 4-1.

Marquette, with a 25-1 record, including a 21-game winning streak, is an overwhelming favorite in its opener against Western Kentucky at Dayton, Ohio. The Warriors are looking ahead to an expected showdown with Indiana in the Mideast regional finals at Baton Rouge, La., March 20.

"I'd like to get at Indiana as soon as possible," said Marquette Coach Al McGuire. "The sooner the better. Too many things can happen in a tournament if you're looking ahead.

"Indiana's been close to getting beat a few times and I think they can be tightening some."

As for the game against Western Kentucky, which posted a 20-8 record, McGuire said, "We don't think it's a piece of cake. We know Western Kentucky is a great ball club."

Among other members of the top 10, fourth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas plays Boise State at Eugene; sixth-ranked North Carolina plays seventh-ranked Alabama at Dayton; eighth-ranked Notre Dame plays Cincinnati at Lawrence, Kan.; ninth-ranked Michigan plays Wichita State at Denton, Tex.; and 10th-ranked Washington plays Missouri at Lawrence, Kan.

Blue Demons are young, 'just beginning to jell'

DePaul's young Blue Demons, making their first NCAA tournament appearance in 11 years, clash tonight with the most surprising entry in the field.

The Virginia Cavaliers come into the Charlotte, N.C. showdown fresh from a stunning Atlantic Coast Conference tournament victory. Virginia knocked off North Carolina State, Maryland and North Carolina on successive nights.

Coach Ray Meyer of DePaul says the biggest program his team faces is Virginia's Wally Walker. Walker, a 6-7 senior, scored 73 points in the ACC Tournament and was chosen most valuable player.

"They (Virginia) do a lot of picking for Wally Walker and that's going to be a problem for us, whether we play him man for man or switch," Meyer said. "If a guy picks him up, he might jump right over him. With all the picking they do, it'll be hard to stay with him."

Meyer says his team is young and is "just beginning to jell." The Demons, who finished with a 19-8 mark, will be depending on 6-11 sophomore center Dave Corzine from Hersey High School to keep them in the game. DePaul starts a freshman, two sophomores and two juniors.

"We haven't proved ourselves yet," Meyer said. "When we're good we're very good. But there's no middle ground for us."

Virginia head man Terry Holland, former coach at Davidson, will be playing in familiar surroundings and will be out to prove the Cavaliers' ACC tournament victory was not a fluke.

"We can't be thinking past the DePaul game," he said. "That's not how we won the tournament. If we start thinking 'Gee, wouldn't it be great to be in Philadelphia (for the NCAA finals),' we aren't going to be there."

The game will be broadcast on WWMM-FM, 92.7, starting at 8:00 p.m. with The Ray Meyer Show and televised on Channel 44 starting at 8:05 p.m.

Baseball talks break off

Major league players, in the wake of suspending all voluntary spring training workouts, Friday broke off negotiations with club owners after two hours of labor discussions. The sudden decision by the players touched off speculation that any settlement of the baseball impasse would not be forthcoming before next week. The players said they would reconvene talks at 10 a.m. Saturday.

"We are disappointed any time progress in the negotiations is curtailed," said National League presidnet Chub Feeney. "Apparently, the players felt they had our sword and now they want our horses." The biggest stumbling block in the negotiations facing the parties is how to resolve the Peter Seitz decision which has ruled baseball controversial reserve clause illegal, thus making every player not under contract a free agent. At present, 193 players remain unsigned.

Sox turf up for grabs

A rabid Chicago White Sox fan could pick up enough souvenir artificial turf Saturday or Sunday to carpet a room or backyard. The Sox issued an invitation to any person, fan or otherwise, who wants a piece of Comiskey Park's artificial turf infield simply to show up. He or she can take home as much of the turf as they can dig up and carry. Digging up won't be necessary really, a team spokesman said.

CONANT'S MIKE FRISCH leaps above Elgin's Randy Roland and Tim Hale for two of his 10 points during the Maroons' 70-54 win over the Cougars in the sectional tournament Friday night.

Frigid Chicago suffers 95-73 loss; Archibald hits 22 points, Love 1

Nate Archibald scored 22 points to lead the Kansas City Kings to a 95-73 victory over the Chicago Bulls Friday night, the seventh loss for the Bulls in the last nine games.

The victory extended the Kings' winning streak to three games with their fourth win in the last five.

Both teams were anemic in their first period shooting, Chicago with a 22 per cent figure on six of 27 field goal attempts and the Kings 39 per cent with nine of 23 to build a 19-14 lead.

Kansas City turned it around in the second quarter for a 46-33 halftime lead with a 55 per cent shooting average for the second quarter compared to 31 per cent for Chicago.

The Kings lead soared to 20 points in the third quarter on a basket by Ollie Johnson with two and a half minutes left for a 68-48 margin and coasted the rest of the way.

Mickey Johnson led Chicago with 18 points and Bob Love played 23 minutes with zero for 15 from the floor. He wound up with only one point.

In other NBA action, guard Pete Maravich scored 27 points and forward Bud Stallworth added 21 to spark the New Orleans Jazz to a 110-101 victory over the Portland Trailblazers.

Calvin Murphy scored 32 points and had eight assists to keep Houston's playoff hopes alive with a 113-100 victory over the Buffalo Braves.

Coniel Norman, with three seconds remaining, hit a 17-foot jumper that gave the Philadelphia 76ers a 109-107 victory over the Atlanta Hawks.

Al Eberhard scored six points and had seven rebounds to lead Detroit to a 117-101 win over Milwaukee and pull the Pistons to within two games of the Bucks in the NBA Midwest Division.

and finishing with 17 for the night.

Redlinger was proud of his charges and it showed. "I can't remember a game this year where they quit," he said, stuffing a late arriving packet of good luck telegrams in his pocket. "We knew we were going to be outmanned when we came in here. We'd seen them play. But we also thought we could beat them.

"They (Conant) were down by 20 and cut it to 12. Then three straight calls went against us, I thought. I'm not saying we'd have made the baskets, but that just took the wind out of our sails," he said.

It had been a satisfying season for the Conant coach, who for the third time in five years, had his team in the sectionals. And, for the second time, had to battle Elgin for the sectional title.

"You boys have nothing to be ashamed of," Redlinger was concluding his post game talk. "You came back and played a beautiful game at the end."

And then, true to form, the ever present bit of a con man in Redlinger came out as he said with a straight face, "We're proud of you for what you did.

"So I'm going to give you tomorrow off."

"I was gunning," he said humbly. But hitting 11 of 15 shots is the kind of gunning accuracy all his teammates should have had.

Offsetting Frye's fine showing was Niles' Tommy Arns. The 5-8 pepperpot penetrated inside and popped from the outside for 17 to balance the two big boys' output. He and his several backcourt teammates were everywhere they shouldn't have been as far as the Huskies were concerned.

One tribute to Hersey and Coach Roger Steingraber was the way the Huskies didn't give up. Several times Niles appeared ready to blow them out (38-20 in the second quarter and 48-30 in the third), but couldn't.

"That's one of the things that's been disturbing to me a ll season," said Billy Schnurr, Niles' head coach. "When we get a 14 or 15 point lead, we seem to ease up." But he added this in their behalf:

"It's awfully hard to expect any team to play a full 32 minutes with the intensity we ask of these kids."

When you've only lost four games (by two points or less) out of 27, who's going to complain very much?

"It's wonderful," said Schnurr of his return visit to Evanston's Super-Sectional. Although he's a veteran of 17 varsity seasons (241-137) and is widely respected for his coaching ability, he has never taken a team downstate. His only other chance was the 1973 shocker.

"Certainly that was a big disappointment," he remembered.

Niles will be meeting Loyola, a team the Indians defeated earlier in the season, 69-65.

Maybe next Tuesday's effort will help erase the '73 nightmare forever. With talent like Big Bob and Big John, it looks like a sure thing.

Mt. Pulaski shocks top-rated Eldorado

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — A scrappy Mount Pulaski team sprung the upset of the year in Illinois Class A basketball Friday, handing No. 1 ranked Eldorado its first defeat in 32 games this year, 76-66.

The win sent Mount Pulaski into the semifinals of the state championship against unbeaten Buda Western, which ran its record to 31-0 with a 64-54 decision over Havana in another quarterfinal contest.

Jeff Clements led Mount Pulaski with 35 points and he was aided by David Thompson and Jeff Anderson, both with 16.

It was the 27th win against two defeats for the Hilltoppers this year, who were ranked No. 10 at the end of the regular season.

Mike Duff, Eldorado's slick 6' 7" center, scored 28 points and Barry Smith had 12.

Mount Pulaski trailed 18-17 at the end of the first quarter but then raced to a 37-32 halftime lead with Clements scoring 19 points for the half.

In the second half, the closest Eldorado could come to overhauling the Hilltoppers was 47-44, near the end of the third period.

But Clements, Anderson and Thompson opened up in a wild last quarter to put the game away.

Buda notches 31st

Buda Western rolled to its 31st straight victory Friday defeating Havana 64-54 to enter the semifinals of the Class A Illinois high school basketball championship.

Buda had too much height for the shorter Havana team which lost for the third time in 29 games. Red haired Ron "Stick" Happach, 6' 6", hit 21 points to lead the No. 4 ranked Buda team.

A game Havana squad fought back from a 37-31 halftime deficit to tie the score at 37-37 with 6:15 remaining in the third quarter. But after that it was all Buda Western with Happach and Dave Hartz hitting key baskets.

Buda Western with only 210 students was the smallest school in the final field of eight. For Buda Jeff Calvert had 13 and Hartz 12. High scorer for Havana was Doug Gregurich with 16, followed by Mark Schappaugh with 13.

The game was marred by many fouls and starting center Steve Williams for Havana fouled out with four minutes remaining, and five other players finished with four fouls.

Marmion eliminated

Jay Shidler scored 37 points to lead No. 2 ranked Lawrenceville in a second-half rally, wiping out an eight-point halftime deficit Friday to edge Aurora Marmion 66-61 and move into the semifinals of the Class A state high school basketball championship.

Lawrenceville, twice the state Class A champion, will meet Oneida ROVA, a 49-46 victor over Bloomington Central Catholic, in the first semifinal game Saturday.

Lawrenceville trailed 43-35 at the half, but came bjck in the third quarter to tie the score, and took the lead to keep at 58-57 on a Shidler basket with 3:04 left in the game.

It was Lawrenceville's 28th win of the season with only one loss, while it gave Marmion its sixth defeat in 29 games.

The flashy Indians raced to a 14-2 lead in the first three minutes, but the Cadets came back with Tim Fichtel hitting three baskets to tie the score at 20-20 at the end of the first quarter. Lawrenceville went cold in the second quarter and Marmion's 6-foot-8 center, Jeff Dawson, and 6-foot-5 John Momper began hitting inside. At one point Marmion led 43-27.

But then Shidler began to get the range again. It was his fighting rebound at the third quarter buzzer which tied the game at 49-49.

Marmion led 53-51 before Shidler scored the first three field goals for Lawrenceville in the final period.

Marmion's top scorers were Fichtel with 21, Dawson with 14, and Momper 12.

ROVA wins opener

Dave Johnson, a 6-foot-8 center, hit a short jumper with 23 seconds to play Friday to give Oneida ROVA a 49-46 victory over Bloomington Central Catholic in a quarterfinal game of the Illinois Class A high school basketball championship.

It was ROVA's 27th win against two losses and gave Bloomington its seventh loss in 31 decisions.

It was a cliff hanging game for ROVA when Bloomington took the lead with five minutes to play at 42-41 on Ken Barnett's basket. Teammate Jeff Legner, a 6-foot-6 forward, hit a three point play to give Catholic a 44-41 lead.

Johnson, ROVA's leading scorer with 21, 15 of them in the first half, then went to work. With a field goal and two free throws, he put ROVA in front 45-44 with 2:50 left.

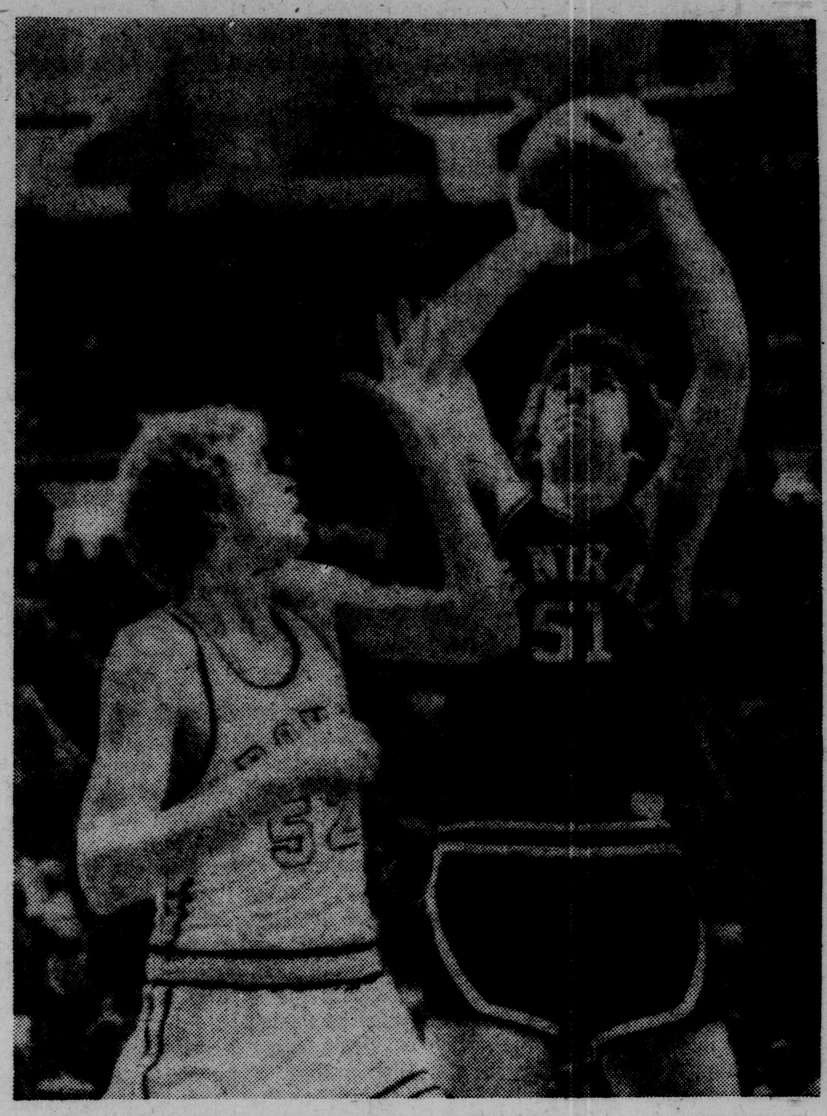
Legner hit from inside to give Catholic the margin again, but Johnson came back with the winning jumper and Dwight Peterson added a free throw for the margin of victory.

ROVA led at the half 27-22 on the inside shooting of Johnson and the outside work of Steve Holmes, who finished with 16 points, nearly all from the corners.

But Bloomington's swarming defense which forced ROVA into several turnovers nearly gave the Saints the victory. The score changed hands four times in the final quarter.

Legner led the losers with 23 points, followed by Barnett with 11.

Bloomington had beaten Watseka and Gridley, tied for No. 7 in the final Class A ratings, to become the dark-horse threat in the final round.



LITTLE GIANTS. Bloomington Central's Jeff Legner fires over Oneida ROVA's Dave Johnson during Class A quarterfinals in Champaign Friday. Oneida advanced, 49-46.

Mt. Pulaski shocks top-rated Eldorado

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (UPI) — A scrappy Mount Pulaski team sprung the upset of the year in Illinois Class A basketball Friday, handing No. 1 ranked Eldorado its first defeat in 32 games this year, 76-66.

The win sent Mount Pulaski into the semifinals of the state championship against unbeaten Buda Western, which ran its record to 31-0 with a 64-54 decision over Havana in another quarterfinal contest.

Jeff Clements led Mount Pulaski with 35 points and he was aided by David Thompson and Jeff Anderson, both with 16.

It was the 27th win against two defeats for the Hilltoppers this year, who were ranked No. 10 at the end of the regular season.

Mike Duff, Eldorado's slick 6' 7" center, scored 28 points and Barry Smith had 12.

Mount Pulaski trailed 18-17 at the end of the first quarter but then raced to a 37-32 halftime lead with Clements scoring 19 points for the half.

In the second half, the closest Eldorado could come to overhauling the Hilltoppers was 47-44, near the end of the third period.

But Clements, Anderson and Thompson opened up in a wild last quarter to put the game away.

Buda notches 31st

Buda Western rolled to its 31st straight victory Friday defeating Havana 64-54 to enter the semifinals of the Class A Illinois high school basketball championship.

Buda had too much height for the shorter Havana team which lost for the third time in 29 games. Red haired Ron "Stick" Happach, 6' 6", hit 21 points to lead the No. 4 ranked Buda team.

A game Havana squad fought back from a 37-31 halftime deficit to tie the score at 37-37 with 6:15 remaining in the third quarter. But after that it was all Buda Western with Happach and Dave Hartz hitting key baskets.

Buda Western with only 210 students was the smallest school in the final field of eight. For Buda Jeff Calvert had 13 and Hartz 12. High scorer for Havana was Doug Gregurich with 16, followed by Mark Schappaugh with 13.

The game was marred by many fouls and starting center Steve Williams for Havana fouled out with four minutes remaining, and five other players finished with four fouls.

Marmion eliminated

Jay Shidler scored 37 points to lead No. 2 ranked Lawrenceville in a second-half rally, wiping out an eight-point halftime deficit Friday to edge Aurora Marmion 66-61 and move into the semifinals of the Class A state high school basketball championship.

Lawrenceville, twice the state Class A champion, will meet Oneida ROVA, a 49-46 victor over Bloomington Central Catholic, in the first semifinal game Saturday.

Lawrenceville trailed 43-35 at the half, but came bjck in the third quarter to tie the score, and took the lead to keep at 58-57 on a Shidler basket with 3:04 left in the game.

It was Lawrenceville's 28th win of the season with only one loss, while it gave Marmion its sixth defeat in 29 games.

The flashy Indians raced to a 14-2 lead in the first three minutes, but the Cadets came back with Tim Fichtel hitting three baskets to tie the score at 20-20 at the end of the first quarter. Lawrenceville went cold in the second quarter and Marmion's 6-foot-8 center, Jeff Dawson, and 6-foot-5 John Momper began hitting inside. At one point Marmion led 43-27.

But then Shidler began to get the range again. It was his fighting rebound at the third quarter buzzer which tied the game at 49-49.

Marmion led 53-51 before Shidler scored the first three field goals for Lawrenceville in the final period.

Marmion's top scorers were Fichtel with 21, Dawson with 14, and Momper 12.

ROVA wins opener

Dave Johnson, a 6-foot-8 center, hit a short jumper with 23 seconds to play Friday to give Oneida ROVA a 49-46 victory over Bloomington Central Catholic in a quarterfinal game of the Illinois Class A high school basketball championship.

It was ROVA's 27th win against two losses and gave Bloomington its seventh loss in 31 decisions.

It was a cliff hanging game for ROVA when Bloomington took the lead with five minutes to play at 42-41 on Ken Barnett's basket. Teammate Jeff Legner, a 6-foot-6 forward, hit a three point play to give Catholic a 44-41 lead.

Johnson, ROVA's leading scorer with 21, 15 of them in the first half, then went to work. With a field goal and two free throws, he put ROVA in front 45-44 with 2:50 left.

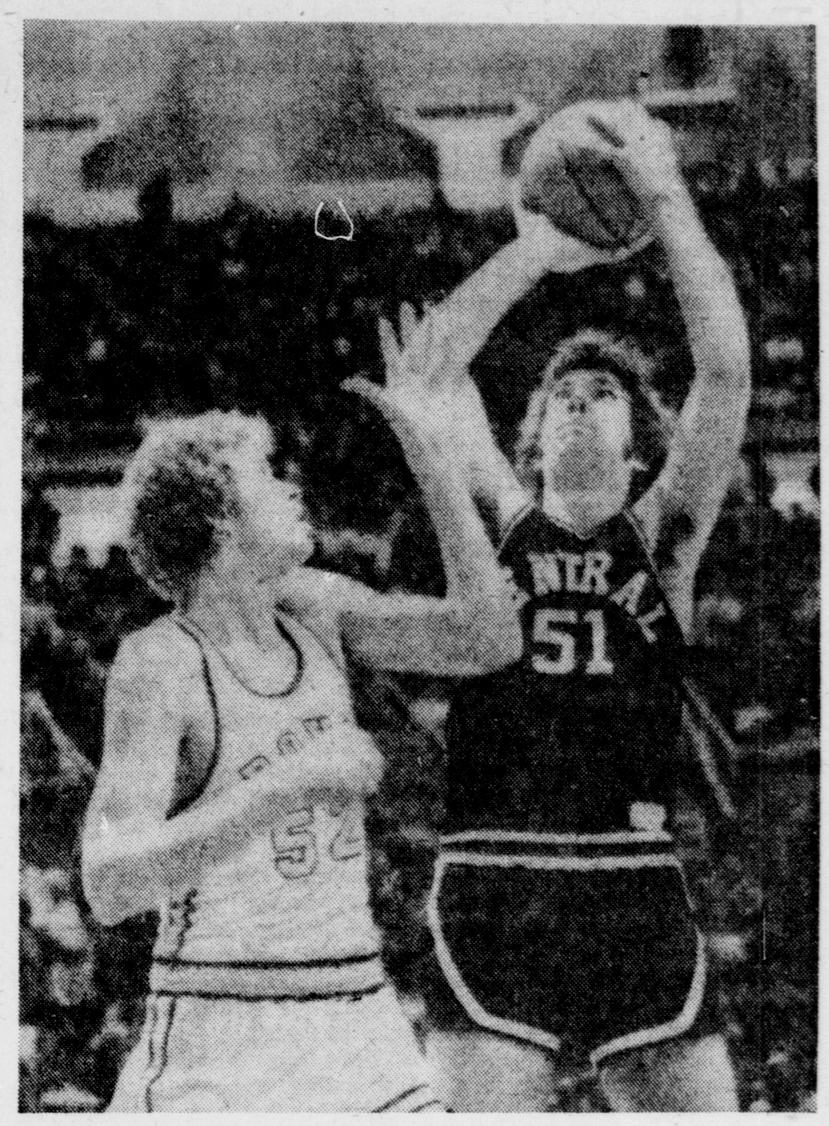
Legner hit from inside to give Catholic the margin again, but Johnson came back with the winning jumper and Dwight Peterson added a free throw for the margin of victory.

ROVA led at the half 27-22 on the inside shooting of Johnson and the outside work of Steve Holmes, who finished with 16 points, nearly all from the corners.

But Bloomington's swarming defense which forced ROVA into several turnovers nearly gave the Saints the victory. The score changed hands four times in the final quarter.

Legner led the losers with 23 points, followed by Barnett with 11.

Bloomington had beaten Watseka and Gridley, tied for No. 7 in the final Class A ratings, to become the dark-horse threat in the final round.



LITTLE GIANTS. Bloomington Central's Jeff Legner fires over Oneida ROVA's Dave Johnson during Class A quarterfinals in Champaign Friday. Oneida advanced, 49-46.

Waterfowl area tabbed for Will County

The Illinois Dept of Conservation has selected the 500-acre northwest portion of the Des Plaines Conservation Area in Will County as its site for a northern Illinois Wildlife management area, director Tony Dean announced at a news conference in Chicago Thursday.

The area, approximately 60 miles from the northwest suburbs, represents about one-eighth of the 4,253 acres comprising the Des Plaines Conservation Area and is situated at the confluence of the Des Plaines and Kankakee rivers, eight miles south of Joliet.

The Northern Illinois Waterfowl Area Search Committee, which had considered over 10 sites for possible transformation into a migrating waterfowl area, proposed the site after a four-month investigation.

"At least one-half of the monies received from duck stamp sales come from northern Illinois and our initial concern was supplying these sportsmen with a good waterfowl area," Dean said.

"The improvements for the Des Plaines Conservation Area will increase waterfowl potential for northeastern Illinois including the Des Plaines River and Dresden Cooling lake and should increase the hunting potential."

The Will County site was a logical choice by the committee since it is already state-owned and requires no additional land acquisition.

With funds derived from the 1976 sale of Illinois Migratory Waterfowl Stamps, construction and inundation are expected to be completed in time for the 1977 waterfowl hunting season.

When finished, the project could draw more than 100,000 waterfowl annually. That estimate is certain to rise when efforts to de-emphasize the use of Horicon Marsh in southern Wisconsin take effect.

Area hunters fared well in the selection in terms of travel to and from the location. The one-hour drive is easily the shortest, compared with the other major metropolitan areas of Rockford and the Quad Cities.

Dean did pacify hunters in the extreme north and west portions of the state by adding that other waterfowl sites have been reviewed and will be built with duck stamp monies at a later date.

These would probably include Kankakee River State Park in Kankakee County, Grass Lake Conservation Area in Lake County, Iroquois Conservation Area in Iroquois County, Lake DePue-Spring Lake Area in Tazewell County, Bureau Pond Area in Bureau County and Big Bend Conservation Area in Whiteside County.

"The Des Plaines Conservation Area project will provide waterfowl with an attractive marsh area, with proper habitat and inundated grain crops," Dean said.

"This area has a waterfowl tradition, having been used by migrating ducks and geese for hundreds of years."

The Dresden Power Plant cooling lake and Goose Lake Prairie State Park offer no-shooting waterfowl oases in close proximity to the proposed site.

Shotgun hunting, under the direction of the Will County Waterfowl Management Area, has been permitted in the Des Plaines Conservation Area for pheasant and rabbit while archers are allowed to take deer.

A potential conflict between waterfowl and upland game hunters who will be shooting during overlapping seasons, is not expected to develop, according to manager Bob Cadwallader.

"We're getting between 50,000 and 60,000 ducks here every year already," Cadwallader said, "but not as many geese. Diving ducks sit in there until late December.

"Right now there are about 500 ducks in there, but they just spend the night and move north the next morning."

With diving and puddle ducks expected to provide the most targets, northern Illinois waterfowl hunters can finally look forward to shooting in their proverbial backyard.

Flutter baits still have appeal

Spoon feeding game fish

by VIC WATIA

There are few fishing lures that'll consistently catch as many varieties of big freshwater game fish as spoons.

Regardless of whether the angler is stalking muskies, northern pike, salmon, trout or lunker bass, there's a spoon that'll do the job at one time or another.

Spoons are deadly lures because they often represent baitfish with their wobbling, fluttering movements. But there are a few tricks the novice angler can use to improve his success with this bait.

Spoons come in a variety of designs, shapes, weights and colors. But, there are almost as many different ways of making them more enticing.

For example, try adding pork rind, plastic worms, rubber skirts, feathers, hair, night-crawlers and other live or cut bait as trailers.

Also, never settle for one retrieve, whether it is fast or slow. And, try fishing a spoon from top to bottom.

For example, the angler might retrieve the spoon for a short distance at a moderate speed, then suddenly stop the retrieve and let it flutter down in the weeds, stickups, rocks or other cover. Be ready on the flutter. That's when the fish often hit.

Ever try to draw out largemouth bass holed up in a moss bed? The single-hook, weedless variety spoon can be the answer. Cast it into the moss bed and begin a retrieve as soon as it hits, bringing the spoon bouncing across the heavy moss on its back. But hang onto that rod. The vibrations produced by the spoon often is enough to send an old sow belly wild and she'll tear through the grass to get what she's after.

Jigging a spoon also can be especially effective when big fish are holed up deep. Jumping a spoon off the bottom and then letting it flutter back again, or simply fishing directly beneath the boat in a yo-yo fashion may be enough.

Don't forget a selection of spoons for trolling. Some are especially designed for that type of fishing. And spoons that imitate tiny minnows can be deadly while stream-fishing for trout.

A few more tips for the novice spoon fisherman: Always be ready to set the hook instantly with a spoon. It doesn't take fish, such as largemouth bass, long to realize a spoon is an imitation and rejecct it.

The treble hook spoon designs are favored by some anglers because they find them easier to hook a fish, but the single hook weedless models have the advantage of coming through just about any type of structure with few, if any, snags.

The novice fisherman should never assume spoon hooks are sharp enough for fishing simply because the lure is new. Spoons usually are equipped with strong single or treble hooks, and most of the time some sharpening must be done before they are put to use.

Then hooks must be checked every once in awhile during use, and sharpened again if needed. Hooks can become dull quickly when bounced on rocky bottoms or pulled through submerged brush.

BASS HAVEN. Springtime fishing for largemouth bass begins by pitching spoons in quiet, deadend channels.

Springtime bass worth a search

The old saying that patience is a virtue certainly rings true for springtime largemouth bass fishermen.

Bass are tough enough to find anytime, but in spring a number of things occur which make it even more difficult to locate these gamefish. The ability to learn where the fish are, and what they are feeding upon, requires an understanding of what occurs to their habitat. The best way to learn this, is to observe what is happening to the body of water you intend to fish.

Among the factors which affect spring bass fishing are water level, water temperature and the presence of natural foods where they have been absent during winter.

Many lakes experience a rising water level after a winter drawdown situation. Remember that when a lake rises in spring, bass will move from their restricted winter holding spots and scatter out over a wide area in search of food. You've got to fish a lot of water to locate them, and if the lake level continues to fluctuate the fish won't stay in any one place too long.

The sun, spring rains and snowmelt combine to change the water temperature in early months. And at times where there is warm water one day, it can be cold the next. So some idea of water temperatures in different areas is helpful in locating bass. Their most active feeding occurs in water between 50 and 70 degrees.

As spring arrives, and water temperatures change, the types of food available become numerous. Crayfish, both aquatic and airborne insects, and small gamefish now become an important part of a bass' diet.

Some baitfish, commonly found in deep water during winter, now move to shallow, warm water. Threadfin shad, for example, need water whose temperature is more than 45 degrees or they will perish. As a lake begins to warm in the upper reaches and cool in the depths, threadfin shad go to the warm water, with the bass right behind.

You can improve your catch of spring bass by observing what happens to the water and knowing how to take advantage of the changes.

National Wildlife Week

Organizations across the country will celebrate the 29th annual National Wildlife Week beginning tomorrow through March 20.

The theme of this year's rendition is "Save Our Wetlands," a growing concern among conservation clubs.

"Wetlands are a priceless and irreplaceable part of our national heritage," Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation said.

"They are important not only to wildlife, but to man. They support a vast range of plants and wildlife, they aid in the natural purification of our water supplies, they provide unique scenic and recreational areas and a good part of our food supply.

"The problem with our wetlands," Kimball continued, "is that some developers regard them as wastelands, to be drained or filled, and improved with buildings. We have bulldozed them and scarred them with drainage ditches until wetlands cover just a fraction of the area they once occupied."

Bing Crosby is the honorary chairman for the 1976 observance which drums the same theme as the 1955 slogan of "Save America's Wetlands."

Twenty years later, the fight still continues.

Arlington Rifle Club wins meet

The Arlington High School Rifle Team captured eight trophies in the Chicagoland Junior Championships at Oak Park Sportsman's Club, including the big team prize with 1462 points.

Shooting for the Cardinals in the four-position (prone, sitting, kneeling event were Rodney Nation (376), Gail Gahart (384, Mike Bender (356) and Jim Zeinz (356). The quartet was shooting from the perfect score of 400. Joliet was a distant second with 1392.

Individual honors were garnered by Gail Gahart who emerged as the top woman shooter in two divisions and Jill Gahart who captured the sub-junior championship in the 14-year-olds and under bracket.

The club will be shooting in the Junior State Championships in Wheaton in two weeks.

Lake Michigan gets rainbow trout stock

Lake Michigan will receive 20,000 to 22,000 5-inch rainbow trout fingerlings Tuesday noon in a Calumet Harbor stocking.

The young fish will be trucked from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Hatchery at Genoa, Wis., in a co-operative stocking project with the Illinois Department of Conservation, according to Tony Dean, conservation department director.

"This stocking will furnish Lake Michigan fishermen with added catchable-sized rainbow trout next summer and fall, as the young fish will tend to disperse up the Calumet River and throughout southern lake waters when they are released."

"We have had these fish on order from the Federal Hatchery for several months, in a continuing effort to improve Lake Michigan fishing opportunities," Dean said.

"The Des Plaines Conservation Area project will provide waterfowl with an attractive marsh area, with proper habitat and inundated grain crops," Dean said.

"This area has a waterfowl tradition, having been used by migrating ducks and geese for hundreds of years."

The Dresden Power Plant cooling lake and Goose Lake Prairie State Park offer no-shooting waterfowl oases in close proximity to the proposed site.

Shotgun hunting, under the direction of the Will County Waterfowl Management Area, has been permitted in the Des Plaines Conservation Area for pheasant and rabbit while archers are allowed to take deer.

A potential conflict between waterfowl and upland game hunters who will be shooting during overlapping seasons, is not expected to develop, according to manager Bob Cadwallader.

"We're getting between 50,000 and 60,000 ducks here every year already," Cadwallader said, "but not as many geese. Diving ducks sit in there until late December.

"Right now there are about 500 ducks in there, but they just spend the night and move north the next morning."

With diving and puddle ducks expected to provide the most targets, northern Illinois waterfowl hunters can finally look forward to shooting in their proverbial backyard.

Flutter baits still have appeal

Spoon feeding game fish

by VIC WATIA

There are few fishing lures that'll consistently catch as many varieties of big freshwater game fish as spoons.

Regardless of whether the angler is stalking muskies, northern pike, salmon, trout or lunker bass, there's a spoon that'll do the job at one time or another.

Spoons are deadly lures because they often represent baitfish with their wobbling, fluttering movements. But there are a few tricks the novice angler can use to improve his success with this bait.

Spoons come in a variety of designs, shapes, weights and colors. But, there are almost as many different ways of making them more enticing.

For example, try adding pork rind, plastic worms, rubber skirts, feathers, hair, night-crawlers and other live or cut bait as trailers.

Also, never settle for one retrieve, whether it is fast or slow. And, try fishing a spoon from top to bottom.

For example, the angler might retrieve the spoon for a short distance at a moderate speed, then suddenly stop the retrieve and let it flutter down in the weeds, stickups, rocks or other cover. Be ready on the flutter. That's when the fish often hit.

Ever try to draw out largemouth bass holed up in a moss bed? The single-hook, weedless variety spoon can be the answer. Cast it into the moss bed and begin a retrieve as soon as it hits, bringing the spoon bouncing across the heavy moss on its back. But hang onto that rod. The vibrations produced by the spoon often is enough to send an old sow belly wild and she'll tear through the grass to get what she's after.

Jigging a spoon also can be especially effective when big fish are holed up deep. Jumping a spoon off the bottom and then letting it flutter back again, or simply fishing directly beneath the boat in a yo-yo fashion may be enough.

Don't forget a selection of spoons for trolling. Some are especially designed for that type of fishing. And spoons that imitate tiny minnows can be deadly while stream-fishing for trout.

A few more tips for the novice spoon fisherman: Always be ready to set the hook instantly with a spoon. It doesn't take fish, such as largemouth bass, long to realize a spoon is an imitation and rejecct it.

The treble hook spoon designs are favored by some anglers because they find them easier to hook a fish, but the single hook weedless models have the advantage of coming through just about any type of structure with few, if any, snags.

The novice fisherman should never assume spoon hooks are sharp enough for fishing simply because the lure is new. Spoons usually are equipped with strong single or treble hooks, and most of the time some sharpening must be done before they are put to use.

Then hooks must be checked every once in awhile during use, and sharpened again if needed. Hooks can become dull quickly when bounced on rocky bottoms or pulled through submerged brush.

BASS HAVEN. Springtime fishing for largemouth bass begins by pitching spoons in quiet, deadend channels.

The old saying that patience is a virtue certainly rings true for springtime largemouth bass fishermen.

Bass are tough enough to find anytime, but in spring a number of things occur which make it even more difficult to locate these gamefish. The ability to learn where the fish are, and what they are feeding upon, requires an understanding of what occurs to their habitat. The best way to learn this, is to observe what is happening to the body of water you intend to fish.

Among the factors which affect spring bass fishing are water level, water temperature and the presence of natural foods where they have been absent during winter.

Many lakes experience a rising water level after a winter drawdown situation. Remember that when a lake rises in spring, bass will move from their restricted winter holding spots and scatter out over a wide area in search of food. You've got to fish a lot of water to locate them, and if the lake level continues to fluctuate the fish won't stay in any one place too long.

The sun, spring rains and snowmelt combine to change the water temperature in early months. And at times where there is warm water one day, it can be cold the next. So some idea of water temperatures in different areas is helpful in locating bass. Their most active feeding occurs in water between 50 and 70 degrees.

As spring arrives, and water temperatures change, the types of food available become numerous. Crayfish, both aquatic and airborne insects, and small gamefish now become an important part of a bass' diet.

Some baitfish, commonly found in deep water during winter, now move to shallow, warm water. Threadfin shad, for example, need water whose temperature is more than 45 degrees or they will perish. As a lake begins to warm in the upper reaches and cool in the depths, threadfin shad go to the warm water, with the bass right behind.

You can improve your catch of spring bass by observing what happens to the water and knowing how to take advantage of the changes.

National Wildlife Week

Organizations across the country will celebrate the 29th annual National Wildlife Week beginning tomorrow through March 20.

The theme of this year's rendition is "Save Our Wetlands," a growing concern among conservation clubs.

"Wetlands are a priceless and irreplaceable part of our national heritage," Thomas L. Kimball, executive vice president of the National Wildlife Federation said.

"They are important not only to wildlife, but to man. They support a vast range of plants and wildlife, they aid in the natural purification of our water supplies, they provide unique scenic and recreational areas and a good part of our food supply.

"The problem with our wetlands," Kimball continued, "is that some developers regard them as wastelands, to be drained or filled, and improved with buildings. We have bulldozed them and scarred them with drainage ditches until wetlands cover just a fraction of the area they once occupied."

Bing Crosby is the honorary chairman for the 1976 observance which drums the same theme as the 1955 slogan of "Save America's Wetlands."

Twenty years later, the fight still continues.

Arlington Rifle Club wins meet

The Arlington High School Rifle Team captured eight trophies in the Chicagoland Junior Championships at Oak Park Sportsman's Club, including the big team prize with 1462 points.

Shooting for the Cardinals in the four-position (prone, sitting, kneeling event were Rodney Nation (376), Gail Gahart (384, Mike Bender (356) and Jim Zeinz (356). The quartet was shooting from the perfect score of 400. Joliet was a distant second with 1392.

Individual honors were garnered by Gail Gahart who emerged as the top woman shooter in two divisions and Jill Gahart who captured the sub-junior championship in the 14-year-olds and under bracket.

The club will be shooting in the Junior State Championships in Wheaton in two weeks.

Lake Michigan gets rainbow trout stock

Lake Michigan will receive 20,000 to 22,000 5-inch rainbow trout fingerlings Tuesday noon in a Calumet Harbor stocking.

The young fish will be trucked from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service Hatchery at Genoa, Wis., in a co-operative stocking project with the Illinois Department of Conservation, according to Tony Dean, conservation department director.

"This stocking will furnish Lake Michigan fishermen with added catchable-sized rainbow trout next summer and fall, as the young fish will tend to disperse up the Calumet River and throughout southern lake waters when they are released."

"We have had these fish on order from the Federal Hatchery for several months, in a continuing effort to improve Lake Michigan fishing opportunities," Dean said.

Dancing the jig- an Irish revival

Reporter Katherine Boyce makes an uncertain attempt at the jig.

by Katherine Boyce

There's a little bit of Blarney in all of us.

On St. Patrick's Day, everyone is Irish. The requirements are fairly clear cut — laughter, song and most of all dance.

Dance is the central theme of Irish culture and more and more people of Irish ancestry in the suburbs are learning this bit of their heritage. Some even insist that there is more Irish dancing here in the Chicago area than there is on the Emerald Isle itself.

In celebration of this St. Pat's Day I decided to bone up on my Irish culture by learning the Irish jig. My search led me to Shelia Tully Driscoll, director of the Tully Irish Step Dancers.

Mrs. Driscoll now has about 200 students, age 5 to 18, in Irish dancing classes and about half live in the Northwest suburbs.

Irish dancing is "an art form today as in ballet. It's a graceful dancing," she said.

Irish dances, like the jig, the reel, and the horn pipe may be graceful but they certainly aren't easy to master. The steps, kicks, skips and hops are done very quickly and a student must have nimble toes to keep up with the fiddler's tempo.

"A knee and a knee and a kick two three," shouts Mrs. Driscoll to her pint-sized students. While all this fancy footwork is going on the upper part of the body is held erect, arms at both sides and hands closed in fists. Most of the Protestant dances, such as Scottish dances, were traditionally done with the hands placed on the hips, said Mrs. Driscoll, but "the Catholic, lovely Irish dancer, was above that."

Most dancers start at an early age, usually in grade school, said Mrs. Driscoll and a good Irish dancer has usually spent at least three years in lessons.

I was doomed from the start. Standing on the sidelines, I figured I could master the jig in one easy lesson and astound my friends after a few toasts at the next Irish wedding. When I joined the beginner group my hopes were crushed. After the first few steps I was lost and resorted to hopping on one foot in time to the music hoping that no one would notice.

Unlike myself, most of the Irish take their dancing seriously and more and more people in Chicago and its suburbs are reviving this ancient art.

Irish dancing schools flourish in the Chicago area. Mrs. Driscoll, a certified Irish step dancing teacher who received her professional training in the old country, operates her school at St. Phillip the Apostle Church in Northfield. It's one of the schools closest to the Northwest suburbs.

Mrs. Driscoll is tempted to open a school closer to the area because more and more of her students live here. There is a "small exodus" of the Irish from Chicago to the suburbs as the city's neighborhoods grow old and change, she said.

Costumes set the mood.

Mount Prospect resident Loretta Cavanagh sends her nine-year-old, Ann, to Irish dancing school "for the culture," she said. "People here in the United States do a lot of Irish step dancing. They dance here more than in Ireland."

The Irish heritage runs deep. Ask some of the parents at Mrs. Driscoll's school where they are from and you won't hear the name of a nearby suburb. Instead, they give you the name of a county in Ireland.

Peter Rynne hails from County Clare but now resides in Wheeling. A reservations officer for United Airlines, Rynne and his family travel to Ireland three times a year where his children participate in Irish step dancing with their cousins.

"Parents here are conscious of their heritage," said Rynne. "We want to keep a link with the old country. The parents want to bring their children up as Irish as possible."

Rynne himself learned the step dances as a child and on occasion he and other Irish friends still practice the dances, usually at weddings, he said "when they're well drunk."

Years ago typical Saturday night entertainment was Irish dancing for many young couples in Chicago. "The Siege of Ennis," the "Walls of Limmerick," and the "Stack of Barley" were just a few of the more popular figure dances, said Rynne. Some of the more popular ballrooms were the Holiday Ballroom at Lawrence and Milwaukee Avenue, The Regent at 69th and Halsted and Carpenter's Hall at Halsted and 63rd. Today those ballrooms have fallen by the wayside. "A lot of Irish places are gone with the change in the neighborhoods," said Rynne.

The huge dance halls still exist in Ireland, especially in the larger cities where dancing is most popular, said Arlington Heights resident Tom Dwyer. The ballrooms are as large as armories and "it's all Irish dancing, no rock and roll," he said.

Each county in Ireland has its own "set" of Irish dances which are performed in costumes in the county colors. There are more than a hundred types of Irish jigs and the steps and tempo have not changed since they were created many decades ago.

In Ireland dance and music are the only forms of relaxation, said Mrs. Driscoll. Almost every home has a button accordion and fiddle, the two most popular instruments. "Music has always meant a lot to the Irish," she said.

Dance competition there is keen. Contests are held continuously and they are followed by the people almost like sport such as football and baseball are followed here, said Mrs. Driscoll.

The Americans are getting in on the act, however, said Rynne. This year the dance championship left Ireland for the first time when it was awarded to a Chicago resident. "They hate for it to leave Ireland," he said. "They hate to admit that the dancing is good here, too."

Irish dancers here compete in a feis (pronounced fesch). Most of the contests are held in the larger cities — Cleveland, San Francisco, Detroit, New York and of course, Chicago. The dancers train for the contest like athletes. Mrs. Driscoll's dancers appear in many contests and shows and are now preparing for their annual performance before Mayer Daley in the State Street parade Wednesday.

Mrs. Driscoll, 30, has been teaching Irish dances for the past 10 years but she remembers a time when the dancing almost made her an outcast. She was one of 1,600 students in her Chicago high school and the only one who took Irish dancing les-

BASKETBALL FEVER

They call it March Madness and it strikes every year as teams fight for a chance at the state title

by Charlie Dickinson

Like small children on Christmas Eve, we often expect too much. Or too little.

This is a story of expectations. The expectations of children are often the most vivid and, when left unfulfilled, the most bitterly disappointing.

Likewise, where there are no expectations the least grain of success is marvelous.

This is the story of the Maine East basketball team of 1965-66. A team without expectations. Also, the Arlington Cardinals of 1966-67, a team with, at least for me, tremendous expectations.

It is also a story about that wonderful disease thousands happily contract each year called "March Madness." The symptoms? Expectations and disappointments of all degrees until only one patient, the Illinois state basketball champion, survives.

The Arlington Cardinals of 1966-67 were winners. Steve Allen, Steve Conley (who later played football for the St. Louis Cardinals), Terry Townley (who wore white socks on and off the court and apologized to no one for this gross breach of high school "cool" ethic), Dave Lockwood, Jim Gracen and Jim Donchess (who played the buffoon for his friends but later went to Yale.)

They were featured in a Chicago paper, midway through an 18-3 regular season, by a hometown reporter as the first solid chance for an Arlington team to win the state championship.

When the regional tournament at Fremd that year began, I was ready. So, I thought, were the Cardinals.

In 1965, the roof began to collapse early on the Maine East basketball team. Wrecked by a split that formed Maine South, the Blue Demons labored under the prejudice that all the good ballplayers had emptied their lockers and regrouped at Maine South.

The Demons did not win their first game until the Christmas tournament, when they beat a weak Cary-Grove team, and finished the season with a record of 3-18, the exact opposite of Arlington's slate the next year.

Bruce Brothers, who teaches driver's education at Maine East and will be inducted into the Illinois high school hall of fame in May as both a player and coach, was the head man at Maine East that season.

"I think it was hard to evaulate the team's morale going into the regional," Brothers said. "We had a tough schedule with kids who didn't have much experience.

"After getting kicked around in the West Suburban League all year it was hard to say what they would do once they started believing in themselves."

The West Suburban had York (undefeated and ranked second in the state), LaGrange and Downers Grove. All fine teams who picked on the last-place Demons. Yet, when these and every other WSL school was sitting on the sidelines watching, Maine East would still be playing for the state basketball championship.

In the Arlington gym, empty and dim in the afternoon, the sunlight pours through dusty windows near the ceiling.

When I was a sophomore in 1967, some of the happiest moments I spent were in that quiet gym shooting buckets. Pretending I was Steve Allen.

With an audience of none and crowd of thousands roaring in my head, I mimicked Allen's turnaround jumper from around the free throw line.

Faces from the past—the 1965-66 Maine East team

In school I would copy his ambling walk, the way he carried his books against his hip. I had expectations for Allen. We called him Wonder.

Maine East began state tournament play in their own gym. Here the memories of the players and coaches take over.

Craig MacGregor, who is now a sales manager for Ardco, Inc.: "Everybody, by the end of the year, was kind of down, you know, but the thing about the state tournament was we knew we had a chance to do something.

"We all felt the regional we were in had some good teams but we also felt the conference we were in was much tougher than the teams in the regional."

Palatine, who was so embarrassed they didn't put the school name on the uniforms, was so afraid of Arlington in the regional opener they altered their style of play.

The Pirates tried a stall, trailed 11-9 at halftime, but lost 43-32 when Wonder cut loose for 16 points.

Wheeling was next, in the semifinal round. Ah, Wheeling! The school we loved to hate.

Maine East began to believe in themselves when they dumped Notre Dame 47-45 in double overtime of the first regional game.

Greg Olsen, who now works for Occidental Life of California, had 11 points in that game: "I don't think the team thought we had much of a chance. But when we played Notre Dame and won in double overtime that seemed to turn us around.

"The first game of the regional was packed but I think that's just because it was at Maine East.

When the regional tournament at Fremd that year began, I was ready. So, I thought, were the Cardinals.

In 1965, the roof began to collapse early on the Maine East basketball team. Wrecked by a split that formed Maine South, the Blue Demons labored under the prejudice that all the good ballplayers had emptied their lockers and regrouped at Maine South.

The Demons did not win their first game until the Christmas tournament, when they beat a weak Cary-Grove team, and finished the season with a record of 3-18, the exact opposite of Arlington's slate the next year.

Bruce Brothers, who teaches driver's education at Maine East and will be inducted into the Illinois high school hall of fame in May as both a player and coach, was the head man at Maine East that season.

"I think it was hard to evaulate the team's morale going into the regional," Brothers said. "We had a tough schedule with kids who didn't have much experience.

"After getting kicked around in the West Suburban League all year it was hard to say what they would do once they started believing in themselves."

The West Suburban had York (undefeated and ranked second in the state), LaGrange and Downers Grove. All fine teams who picked on the last-place Demons. Yet, when these and every other WSL school was sitting on the sidelines watching, Maine East would still be playing for the state basketball championship.

In the Arlington gym, empty and dim in the afternoon, the sunlight pours through dusty windows near the ceiling.

When I was a sophomore in 1967, some of the happiest moments I spent were in that quiet gym shooting buckets. Pretending I was Steve Allen.

With an audience of none and crowd of thousands roaring in my head, I mimicked Allen's turnaround jumper from around the free throw line.

In school I would copy his ambling walk, the way he carried his books against his hip. I had expectations for Allen. We called him Wonder.

Maine East began state tournament play in their own gym. Here the memories of the players and coaches take over.

Craig MacGregor, who is now a sales manager for Ardco, Inc.: "Everybody, by the end of the year, was kind of down, you know, but the thing about the state tournament was we knew we had a chance to do something.

"We all felt the regional we were in had some good teams but we also felt the conference we were in was much tougher than the teams in the regional."

Palatine, who was so embarrassed they didn't put the school name on the uniforms, was so afraid of Arlington in the regional opener they altered their style of play.

The Pirates tried a stall, trailed 11-9 at halftime, but lost 43-32 when Wonder cut loose for 16 points.

Wheeling was next, in the semifinal round. Ah, Wheeling! The school we loved to hate.

Maine East began to believe in themselves when they dumped Notre Dame 47-45 in double overtime of the first regional game.

Greg Olsen, who now works for Occidental Life of California, had 11 points in that game: "I don't think the team thought we had much of a chance. But when we played Notre Dame and won in double overtime that seemed to turn us around.

"The first game of the regional was packed but I think that's just because it was at Maine East.

Faces from the past—the 1965-66 Maine East team

"After we won they had pep rallies near the end of school every day to get everybody out. I think we had one Friday just to tell everyone we were in the regional.

"But once we won everybody wanted to get on the bandwagon in a sense.

"From what I remember it was really exciting. I felt fortunate to be on that team, to be a part of all that excitement, at that time."

We called Wheeling's Bastable brothers, Tom and Jack, Bastablet and Bastablej. Their names were listed on the scoreboard as BASTABLE T and BASTABLE J.

They never seemed to stop running, flinging the ball upcourt then chasing after it. It looked like disorganized wind sprints.

Arlington played under control and their patience, plus 20 points from Wonder and 25 from Terry Townley, frustrated the 'Cats 67-63.

A team from somewhere called Antioch, a group of small timers who had had to win a district title to get to the regionals, waited in the finals.

By working a little overtime at the gas station, I figured I could just about afford a bus ticket to Champaign.

MacGregor: "Maine South was the biggest game."

Brothers: "Nobody gave us a chance against Maine South. They had an excellent record and a lot of press in the papers so we definitely had the advantage of being the underdog."

MacGregor: "Maine South had won a lot more games. They were in a much easier conference. It was newly formed so they were very successful right from the start.

"I think it gave the students at Maine South the idea we were just a stepping stone to the sectional.

"There's no question about it. Maine South was the Big One."

Antioch proved that little wasn't necessarily bad. They certainly weren't slow nor, I felt, suitably awed by Arlington.

The Fremd gym was loaded, mostly with Cardinal fans itching for a chance to beat up on a poor little district school.

MacGregor: "Maine South was a natural rivalry because we knew most of the students. Half of them had been together since junior high and most of us had been teammates at one time or another.

"When we played them it was unbelievable. From the time we ran out on the court until the end of the game it was just hysteria."

Maine East won the regional title at the free throw line, hitting 24 to the Hawks' nine. The final was 46-45.

The team that had won only three games all year had now doubled their record, winning their regional title by a total of four points.

Brothers: "That was the greatest thing ever. After we beat Maine South the whole school thought we were going to win the state tournament. I mean, that's just how unrealistic it was."

Antioch's Tyrone Walls trotted onto the floor with his team and, while passing Arlington, slapped hands with Wonder.

It was the last time anyone touched Walls all night.

Wonder scored 23 points and fouled out. Walls got 26 and was around until the end.

Donchess held his own with 13 points but Gracen scored only two, Lockwood four and Conley a single free throw.

Fever's hottest downstate

by Joe Swickard

How serious do the hometown folks take their high school basketball? Just ask Pres. Gerald R. Ford and he can tell you about Galesburg.

Appearing in Peoria last week, he told the audience he hoped to follow the example of the Peoria Richwood team and sweep through 1976 undefeated.

Well, that may play for the President in Peoria but it didn't sit too well with the fans of the Silver Streaks down I-74 where the Galesburg-five topped the Richwoods Knights in an overtime thriller as he was saying it.

The White House was bombarded with telephone calls and telegrams following the Galesburg victory.

As the belated congratulatory wire was sent to coach Mike Owens and his charges, Ford learned that "March Madness" is a serious business in downstate Illinois. That's the way it is in Galesburg, Quincy, Effingham, Cobden, Lawrenceville, Mound City, Vienna and a string of other small towns. Nothing's more important than basketball in the late fall and winter; it's a town's biggest social event.

A fan observed just a few days before the presidential faux pas, "I've been all around the country and people will say, 'Oh Galesburg, that's where the basketball dynasty is.'"

Or as Fred Anderson said over coffee, "We don't understand his pardon of Nixon, but we'll accept it. However, we just can't condone his remarks on the Streaks' ability."

If there are winners, and winning traditions there have to be losers. And a losing tag can haunt a town for years.

Driving along a state highway, a long time resident will point down a blacktop road and say "Bardolph. Two big things have happened to that town: Burl Ives was born there and they lost 68 basketball games in a row. The schools consolidated before they won again and Burl doesn't come back anymore, either. Poor Bardolph."

In towns like Galesburg, the local fortunes rise and fall on the fate of the hardwood five. But they would never allow a string of failures to reach the proportions of Bardolph. In the first place, the coach would probably be run out of town about half-way through the first season and secondly half the population would have to be restrained from harming themselves.

The whole town has a basketball jones that won't quit.

Friday night, the traditional night farmers and residents of outlying smaller communities come to Galesburg to shop, presented problems for the merchants.

With the varsity games scheduled for 8 p.m., not only were they losing customers, they couldn't get to the games themselves. An accord was struck calling for the tip-off to be delayed for 45 minutes so business, and the business owners' fanaticism, wouldn't suffer unduly.

While a town can't shut down for the state basketball tournament, portable television sets are brought into the stores so customers, and possibly salespersons, won't have to stay home to catch the action.

Politicians looking for a few votes can always find them during half-time at the concession stands. Apple pie, motherhood and basketball is a combination that is hard to top.

Local lore is replete with tales of fans sans tickets trying to get inside the gym. They'll show up with clipboard and claim to be college scouts or else flash a badge and identify themselves as fire marshals or building inspectors.

One fan reportedly tried to conceal himself in a vent before the game. He got inside the vent all right, but he soon discovered that getting into it was a piece of cake compared to getting out.

Jack Enes likes the Galesburg fans to come around his Northgate Lounge. It's close to the high school and all that arguing about basketball can work up a thirst in the customers. Given a few minutes, Enes can round up more fans that should be allowed to congregate outside a gymnasium.

"It's a social thing — an event around here," Enes said. "Men go to the games in good suits and women wear furs. If they are going to a basketball game, you'd think they'd wear something old, a sweater or something."

The social life in midsize towns is limited, Enes observed. People get tired of movies, bowling or bar hopping and a weekend of basketball provides the excitement of the game plus fodder for a full week's worth of arguments.

Jim French, one of the bartenders, joined the conversation, "I still watch high school basketball because it is the greatest thing going. I played in Burlington (Iowa), but we never had it."

A crowd starts to gather and although it is still early in March the voices begin to rise as symptoms of the madness become unmistakable.

Lief Erickson, a man who played for the Galesburg Silver Streaks 20 years ago contends people project themselves into the game.

"Yes, you can lose sight of the fact that it's just 16 and 17 year-old kids out there. But a lot of times you don't realize it till after the game. It's the emotions," he said.

The emotions are the key. The players want to win for the school spirit and a good coach (read that a winning coach) hypes the emotion into a community-wide wave.

When Madness hits, it hits hard

Antioch won 59-51, taking Arlington 's state championship hopes with them to the sectional.

The Cardinals finished 20-4. They got their picture on the wall in the school's foyer. So outlandish was the idea of that team not winning somebody misspelled the word "losses" in the photo caption.

They were calling Maine East the "Cinderella" team now. Sportswriters have a habit of labeling things and this was a natural for the Demons.

But at 6-18 nobody expected them to get past North Chicago, a 23-5 conference champion with a fluid offense and a dude named Rufus Woods.

Brothers: "North Chicago had a boy named Woods who was a candidate for all-state. He was trying to bring the ball upcourt, trying to score, trying to do everything.

"As I recall, he didn't pass much. I don't think he played a very good game.

"It seemed like we had every kid in school at that game. We must have taken 10 or 11 busses."

There was no pep rally for the Arlington basketball team. Or, if there was, I didn't attend.

There was a lot of bitterness. People saying, "I knew it all along. I knew they weren't that good."

I wish someone had told me.

Rufus Woods got 31 against Maine East but the Demons won in stylish and convincing fashion, 70-57.

Steve Zebos, an assistant coach on the Maine East team and now a history teacher at the school, remarked: "This kid from North Chicago was a star. But we convinced the kids if all five played as hard as they could we would beat a team with one or two or three stars."

MacGregor: "I think I became a believer after the North Chicago game. I didn't know what the hell was going to happen after the regional but then we beat North Chicago pretty convincingly and all the students were coming up to me and asking, 'Can you beat New Trier?'

"And I said, 'I don't know why not. What the hell.'"

But, as they say, it was not to be. New Trier East, who had clobbered Maine East earlier in the year, whipped them in the sectional final, 63-47.

They had gone a lot further than anyone expected. There was a lot to remember.

MacGregor: "It was a great experience. It made a lot of difference in the way the whole year went, not just for the team but for everybody because it picked up the school.

"If we had lost that first (regional) game it would have been a lousy year. A discouraging year."

Zebos: "We were grateful we had gotten that far. We were close in the fourth quarter and they finally realized they might win and go to state. It was too much of an emotional thing for them and they took a couple shots we didn't want them to take and that hurt us."

Olsen: "After we beat Maine South for the regional title all the kids were really enthusiastic and swept down on the floor and carried us off. I never expected that.

"That's what I remember most."

Remember 1974? Hersey High School made the finals.

Fever's hot downstate

Thiel would roll on the floor or stand on his head during a game if necessary to get things going. He was known to have taken a seat with the spectators to lead the booing of the officiating or make rude gestures to the opposition's fans.

The year after Thiel stepped down from the helm, the team suffered through a mediocre season. Soon bumperstickers reading "Bring the Bastard Back" were sported on cars around town.

The coach may not have been popular, but the town loves a winner.

Jerry Kennedy, a fan, said: "This enthusiasm — the adults hold on to it better than the kids."

And it isn't just the long-time residents who care passionately about the Streaks. Newcomers to town pick up the infection from their neighbors and children. One woman even admits to cancelling beauty shop appointments so she can see the team.

Nor does the fever lessen with age. Robert Egan has faithfully followed the game for 65 of his 70 years. Egan, an attorney, will come out at night just to talk about the game.

"It's a focal point," he said in the measured phrases of the law. "It affords a common focal point."

Enes interjects that basketball-crazy towns are about the same population as Galesburg with a single public high school. It becomes the rallying point, he said.

Yes, but there's more than that, Egan said. He knows of marriages saved by a common interest in the game. Fathers and sons become closer and for the players, "It helps build character and confidence. And I think that is a good thing," he said.

"I get a big kick out of their enthusiasm and pep," he said. "Basketball attracts wholesomeness."

Jerry Kennedy observed that while the game provides "social relaxation" there is a lot of pride riding along with it.

Talking about Galesburg basketball? Smile when you say that, Mr. President.

Formal gardens on display at Flower Show March 20

More than 50 formal gardens will be on display March 20-28 at the Chicago Flower and Garden Show at McCormick Place.

The theme for the show, sponsored by the Chicago Horticultural Society, is "America, the Colorful!", a salute to the Bicentennial. A variety of educational displays, puppet shows by Ronald McDonald and performances by a magician will highlight the show.

Also featured will be the work of artist Ricardo Alonzo whose murals have been dedicated to the preservation of America's endangered animals.

March 21 has been set as Camera Day at the show to allow photographers access to the gardens and flower displays. On that day people carrying cameras will be admitted from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. at a special rate of $2.75. Herman the Hermit Clown will also appear on Camera Day, broadcasting his Sunday morning show on WWMM-FM radio in Arlington Heights, from the flower show. He will also be available for picture taking with children.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. They can be purchased at the door.

Chicago's two world's fairs featured in new exhibit at history society

"America in the World," an exhibit on the contributions of Chicago and its citizens to world affairs, opens today at the Chicago Historical Society and will continue through April 5.

The city's two world's fairs, the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893 and a Century of Progress in 1933-34, are featured in the exhibit as well as Chicago's extensive shipping trade with foreign counties. The roles of Chicagoans in fighting America's foreign wars and in working for peace are also part of the display on the ground floor of the society, Clark Street and North Avenue.

The exhibit can be seen 9:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 12:30 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children aged 6-17 and 25 cents for senior citizens.

Chicago psychic guests on Merv Griffin show

Joseph DeLouise, Chicago psychic who has received national acclaim for his assistance in solving the Sharon Tate murders and his accuracy in predicting Ted Kennedy's Chappaquiddick tragedy, will appear on "The Merv Griffin Show" Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channel 32.

Some of the nation's leading psychics will be on hand to discuss their 1976 predictions. DeLouise's latest predictions include a cure for cancer within the next two years, neither President Ford nor Ronald Reagan winning the Republican nomination and no conviction for Patty Hearst.

CBS to air "Pinocchio"

Danny Kaye and Sandy Duncan will star in a special 90-minute musical version of "Pinocchio" March 27 at 7 p.m. on CBS.

Kaye will portray the wood-carver Gepetto and Miss Duncan will play the title role of Pinocchio, the boy-like puppet who comes magically to life.

Formal gardens on display at Flower Show March 20

More than 50 formal gardens will be on display March 20-28 at the Chicago Flower and Garden Show at McCormick Place.

The theme for the show, sponsored by the Chicago Horticultural Society, is "America, the Colorful!", a salute to the Bicentennial. A variety of educational displays, puppet shows by Ronald McDonald and performances by a magician will highlight the show.

Also featured will be the work of artist Ricardo Alonzo whose murals have been dedicated to the preservation of America's endangered animals.

March 21 has been set as Camera Day at the show to allow photographers access to the gardens and flower displays. On that day people carrying cameras will be admitted from 8 a.m. to 10 a.m. at a special rate of $2.75. Herman the Hermit Clown will also appear on Camera Day, broadcasting his Sunday morning show on WWMM-FM radio in Arlington Heights, from the flower show. He will also be available for picture taking with children.

Tickets are $3.50 for adults and $1.50 for children. They can be purchased at the door.

Chicago's two world's fairs featured in new exhibit at history society

"America in the World," an exhibit on the contributions of Chicago and its citizens to world affairs, opens today at the Chicago Historical Society and will continue through April 5.

The city's two world's fairs, the World's Columbian Exposition of 1893 and a Century of Progress in 1933-34, are featured in the exhibit as well as Chicago's extensive shipping trade with foreign counties. The roles of Chicagoans in fighting America's foreign wars and in working for peace are also part of the display on the ground floor of the society, Clark Street and North Avenue.

The exhibit can be seen 9:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 12:30 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children aged 6-17 and 25 cents for senior citizens.

Chicago psychic guests on Merv Griffin show

Joseph DeLouise, Chicago psychic who has received national acclaim for his assistance in solving the Sharon Tate murders and his accuracy in predicting Ted Kennedy's Chappaquiddick tragedy, will appear on "The Merv Griffin Show" Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channel 32.

Some of the nation's leading psychics will be on hand to discuss their 1976 predictions. DeLouise's latest predictions include a cure for cancer within the next two years, neither President Ford nor Ronald Reagan winning the Republican nomination and no conviction for Patty Hearst.

CBS to air "Pinocchio"

Danny Kaye and Sandy Duncan will star in a special 90-minute musical version of "Pinocchio" March 27 at 7 p.m. on CBS.

Kaye will portray the wood-carver Gepetto and Miss Duncan will play the title role of Pinocchio, the boy-like puppet who comes magically to life.

sons. Her classmates looked down on her because she was from an immigrant family which kept the old traditions.

Even the people in Ireland expect that the Irish ways are quickly lost when the old country is left behind. When visiting Ireland recently Mrs. Driscoll danced for some of her kinfolk and they were "shocked that an American could want to follow up on the tradition," she said.

But in America today it's "in" to be ethnic. People are developing more and more pride in their heritage, said Mrs. Driscoll. "Today we're going back to the old ways."

St. Pat's parade starts at 1 p.m. Wednesday

Some 70,000 marchers and 50 floats will depict the Irish heritage in the three-hour St. Patrick's Day Parade which begins at 1 p.m. in Chicago Wednesday.

Floats will characterize historical activities of the Irish Americans since 1776 in honor of the Bicentennial. One float recalls Irish-born signers of the Declaration of Independence while another depicts Fort Dearborn, the original settlement in Chicago. A reactivated Civil War unit, Mulligan's Brigade, joins the two mile celebration down State Street.

Day's activities begin with 10 a.m. mass at Old St. Patrick's Church, Adams Street and Des Plaines Avenue. The parade will follow State Street from Wacker Drive to the Congress Expressway.

TV looks at heart surgery

The story of a boy who doesn't survive

by Karen Blecha

When the British Broadcasting Corp. started its project to film a 7-year-old boy undergoing open heart surgery, producers hoped to turn out a documentary with a happy ending.

Marek, a slight, quiet kind of boy, had a "hole in the heart" and some 90 per cent of children with the problem survive. But in Marek's case there were complications and within 24 hours of the difficult operation, the boy died.

At the urging of the family, the BBC continued its plans to air the program. The result is a touching look at a crisis-torn family who had the courage to make a difficult decision and face the consequences.

"Marek," will be aired on WTTW-Channel 11, Monday at 8:30 p.m. as part of the station's Festival '76. It will be the first time the program is shown in the U.S.

The film begins 10 days prior to Marek's admittance to the hospital, following his daily routine at home, school and on family outings with his parents and two younger sisters both born with normal hearts.

If Marek did not have the operation, doctors predicted his body would deteriorate and serious complications would set in by the time he reached 20. Even at the age of seven, Marek couldn't play like other children, swing on a swing without resting afterwards and had to be pushed around in a stroller when the family visited the zoo.

"We had nothing to look forward to. We wanted to give Marek a chance," his parents, Liz and Zenon, said. "We felt it would be more heartbreaking to watch him deteriorate."

The camera follows Marek into the hospital and into the operating room. There are close-up shots of the operation as the surgeon describes the procedure. The camera also captures the frightened, numb looks of the parents when they are told the risks of the operation and the tears they shed when they offer Marek's kidneys for transplant if he doesn't survive.

"Everyone knew Marek might die but we just didn't believe it would happen," his mother said after the operation. "We would make the decision again if we had to."

The show opens with this warning: "Viewers may find this story distressing." But whether it distresses you or not, the story of seven-year-old Marek is worth watching. What happened to Liz and Zenon, could happen to any parent.

TV looks at heart surgery

The story of a boy who doesn't survive

by Karen Blecha

When the British Broadcasting Corp. started its project to film a 7-year-old boy undergoing open heart surgery, producers hoped to turn out a documentary with a happy ending.

Marek, a slight, quiet kind of boy, had a "hole in the heart" and some 90 per cent of children with the problem survive. But in Marek's case there were complications and within 24 hours of the difficult operation, the boy died.

At the urging of the family, the BBC continued its plans to air the program. The result is a touching look at a crisis-torn family who had the courage to make a difficult decision and face the consequences.

"Marek," will be aired on WTTW-Channel 11, Monday at 8:30 p.m. as part of the station's Festival '76. It will be the first time the program is shown in the U.S.

The film begins 10 days prior to Marek's admittance to the hospital, following his daily routine at home, school and on family outings with his parents and two younger sisters both born with normal hearts.

If Marek did not have the operation, doctors predicted his body would deteriorate and serious complications would set in by the time he reached 20. Even at the age of seven, Marek couldn't play like other children, swing on a swing without resting afterwards and had to be pushed around in a stroller when the family visited the zoo.

"We had nothing to look forward to. We wanted to give Marek a chance," his parents, Liz and Zenon, said. "We felt it would be more heartbreaking to watch him deteriorate."

The camera follows Marek into the hospital and into the operating room. There are close-up shots of the operation as the surgeon describes the procedure. The camera also captures the frightened, numb looks of the parents when they are told the risks of the operation and the tears they shed when they offer Marek's kidneys for transplant if he doesn't survive.

"Everyone knew Marek might die but we just didn't believe it would happen," his mother said after the operation. "We would make the decision again if we had to."

The show opens with this warning: "Viewers may find this story distressing." But whether it distresses you or not, the story of seven-year-old Marek is worth watching. What happened to Liz and Zenon, could happen to any parent.

Are Sonny and Cher falling in love again?

Some people say it's romance; some say it's show business and others are willing to bet an old love is being rekindled.

You can get in on the speculation yourself by tuning in Sonny and Cher on Sunday nights.

Long, tender looks linger between them. They touch one another gently. They emphasize key words during a ballad. Their daughter, Chastity, has appeared on the show.

"Something definitely is happening between those two," said a close friend of both back stage at CBS during a rehearsal. "Look at them. Like a couple of school kids."

Cher is married to musician Gregg Allman and carrying his baby. Sonny professes to being in love with a young beauty named Susie.

Producer Nick Vanoff watched Sonny and Cher holding hands. "I really think they love one another," he said. "The rest of the country thinks they're starting up a romance again."

The cast, wearing heavy padding, was rehearsing a tough dance number, a comedic take-off on "Gone With The Wind." After more than an hour under the broiling lights, Cher, heavy with child, has beginning to wilt.

The number came off without a hitch. Cher threw Sonny a look of gratitude.

In his dressing room Sonny has cheerful and relaxed. "People are reading a lot into our relationship," he said. "We were married 11 years, you know, and I'm not sure how to interpret our relationship now.

"We're just being ourselves. We knew we could do this show honestly. We're not trying to fool the public. The show is exciting because everybody made a moral issue out of our reunion.

"There's no reason why two people shouldn't relate after what we've been through together.

SONNY AND CHER

"We're enjoying ourselves much more than we did on the old 'Sonny and Cher Show.' We don't have the same anxieties of our final year together because we were performing under a pretext.

Cher removed a Scarlett O'Hara wig in her own dressing room. The additional weight of her pregnancy has brought new beauty to her fragile face.

"I knew how it would be at our press conference a couple of months ago," she said. "Both of us knew instantly what our relationship would be on the air. Well, at least I did.

"We're not exactly flirting with one another. But there's something there. An electric charge goes back and forth between us. It's hard to explain.

"I had a moment on camera the other day when we were singing one of our old songs. I started to choke up. It was a terrifically emotional thing. It threw me for a minute. But I got hold of myself.

"Sonny is the best performer I've ever worked with. If I give him a look he knows exactly what I'm thinking. We have a language all our own.

"Of course I love Sonny. In a way I can't describe."

Are Sonny and Cher falling in love again?

Some people say it's romance; some say it's show business and others are willing to bet an old love is being rekindled.

You can get in on the speculation yourself by tuning in Sonny and Cher on Sunday nights.

Long, tender looks linger between them. They touch one another gently. They emphasize key words during a ballad. Their daughter, Chastity, has appeared on the show.

"Something definitely is happening between those two," said a close friend of both back stage at CBS during a rehearsal. "Look at them. Like a couple of school kids."

Cher is married to musician Gregg Allman and carrying his baby. Sonny professes to being in love with a young beauty named Susie.

Producer Nick Vanoff watched Sonny and Cher holding hands. "I really think they love one another," he said. "The rest of the country thinks they're starting up a romance again."

The cast, wearing heavy padding, was rehearsing a tough dance number, a comedic take-off on "Gone With The Wind." After more than an hour under the broiling lights, Cher, heavy with child, has beginning to wilt.

The choreographer and director called for yet another rehearsal.

Sonny, apparently the only one aware of his ex-wife's exhaustion, said, "The hell with it. No more rehearsals. Let's get it over with on this take."

The number came off without a hitch. Cher threw Sonny a look of gratitude.

In his dressing room Sonny has cheerful and relaxed. "People are reading a lot into our relationship," he said. "We were married 11 years, you know, and I'm not sure how to interpret our relationship now.

"We're just being ourselves. We knew we could do this show honestly. We're not trying to fool the public. The show is exciting because everybody made a moral issue out of our reunion.

"There's no reason why two people shouldn't relate after what we've been through together.

SONNY AND CHER

"We're enjoying ourselves much more than we did on the old 'Sonny and Cher Show.' We don't have the same anxieties of our final year together because we were performing under a pretext.

Cher removed a Scarlett O'Hara wig in her own dressing room. The additional weight of her pregnancy has brought new beauty to her fragile face.

"I knew how it would be at our press conference a couple of months ago," she said. "Both of us knew instantly what our relationship would be on the air. Well, at least I did.

"We're not exactly flirting with one another. But there's something there. An electric charge goes back and forth between us. It's hard to explain.

"I had a moment on camera the other day when we were singing one of our old songs. I started to choke up. It was a terrifically emotional thing. It threw me for a minute. But I got hold of myself.

"Sonny is the best performer I've ever worked with. If I give him a look he knows exactly what I'm thinking. We have a language all our own.

Just call Mitzi Miss Moneybags

by Vernon Scott

If you were to ask which glamor girl earns the most money these days; chances are a movie or television star would come to mind:

Elizabeth Taylor, Mary Tyler Moore, Carol Burnett. Perhaps Cher or Ann-Margret or maybe Raquel Welch.

No records are kept on that sort of data. Perhaps only the Internal Revenue Service knows for sure.

But a good bet would be Mitzi Gaynor.

She never fails to bring in considerably more than $1 million a year on her concerts alone. Then there are stands in Las Vegas, Reno and Tahoe which fill the coffers. Add to this her annual television special and the leggy beauty is a favorite for the Miss Moneybags title.

Mitzi has been married to businessman-producer Jack Bean for more than 20 years. He acts as her agent and personal manager; thereby saving at least 20 per cent of Mitzi's earnings.

She has no coterie of hangers-on either. Only her hair dresser travels with Mitzi on the road. Bean, a handsome, personable Irishman, drives a hard and profitable bargain. He is responsible in large part for his wife's success and enormous earnings.

Jack set Mitzi's seventh special, titled "Mitzi . . . Roarin' in the 20s," which airs at 8 p.m. Sunday on CBS.

She's stuck on a three-dot kick. Last year it was "Mitzi . . . 100 Guys." The year before it was "Mitzi . . . The First Time."

"We try to come up with a theme for each special" Mitzi explained. "This year we bring back the old dances of the 20's - the Charleston, Black Bottom, Snake Hips, Tango and Sugar Blues among others.

"I never appear on regular musical series because it would detract from the specialness of my own shows. It's easy to become overexposed. I like to make my musicals an event.

"Anyhow, if you are a guest on a weekly variety show everything is done so fast you don't have a chance to do your best work. It's not worth it."

Mitzi clearly is very special wherever she goes. Twenty weeks a year are devoted to one-week concerts in 20 different cities and she fills the halls to overloading.

"Jack finds the best and largest theaters or arenas in each city," she said. "The average capacity is 3,200. In St. Louis I play to 12,000 people a night.

"The best part is I only do one show an evening. I'm through by 11 o'clock. Who needs movies, getting up at 5 a.m. and worrying about bad reviews? This way I do my own thing and love every minute of it."

Mitzi had done a dozen movies before films fell on hard times. It was Jack who decided she should hit the road with her own show.

"He told me there was no point in waiting around for the telephone to ring," she said. "He wanted me to stand on my own two feet and not have to rely on anyone else.

"Now my TV shows are almost like making a musical movie. Our sponsor pays a half-million dollars for the show; and we own it and sell it abroad. I spend six weeks rehearsing. And in this show there are 20 different numbers."

Mitzi's television productions are not repeated on her concert shows. She spends months preparing for her 20 weeks on the road.

"I get 10 weeks to myself every year," she said, smiling. "I just collapse at home, lie around the pool and go to the beach. I catch up on entertaining my friends at dinner. I keep physically fit by exercising three times a week..

"But I thrive on work. I can't think of anything I'd rather do."

Shelby Lyman on chess

After 20-year-old Bill Koch won a surprise silver medal in a Winter Olympics long distance skiing event, he described the discomfort that normally accompanied such exertions. Mental factors decided the winner among performers of the same physical ability, he said.

Michael Botvinnik, the most successful chessplayer of all during the last 40 years, would agree. This Russian engineer was World Champion in 13 years of the 15 year period 1948-1963. Since his reign, not one of four successive title-holders has had a significant tenure. Though the new champion, Anatoly Karpov, Bobby Fischer's successor, may be the first exception.

It is interesting that young Karpov, an incomparable fighter on the chessboard himself, confesses a debt to the older grandmaster. "He (Botvinnik) made me aware of the seriousness of chess and of the fact that even the most talented of players could not go far without diligent and painstaking work."

Now Botvinnik has new proteges. One of them, 12-year-old Harry Kasparov, has recently won the U.S.S.R. chess championship for teenagers! Another of his pupils finished third.

What secrets of will and fighting spirit has the ex-World Champion passed on to these youth? Will Botvannik now dominate world chess by proxy?

An international tournament is often a boon for local masters who get a rare opportunity to play some of the world's better players.

Last August at Olomouc, the indiginous Czechoslovakian Traunicek had such a chance. But he gained notoriety by losing an embarrassingly brief game to the tournament winner, ex-Soviet Champion Alexandor Suetin.

In the diagrammed position, (see Solve-It) Traunicek incorrectly assumed that the white knight was pinned down at KB3. He had apparently overlooked the vulnerability of his own king. When Suetin surprised with 6.NxN, Traunicek could only desparingly capture the black queen with his bishop. A few moves later, he resigned after 7.B-N5ch, Q-Q2; 8. BxQch. Too much material would be lost.

Thoughts on a Mattress

For some strange reason some people would rather buy a guarantee than a mattress - or any other product, for that matter. That's why most of the big manufacturers come out with these fancy guarantees designed to look like a Federal War Bond and filled with oodles of fine print that takes a battery of legal experts to figure out. And if you don't buy their extra special, super supporter box spring, or if you sleep on your left side, or spend more than one hour a night on the mattress, the guarantee is null and void.

So anyway, we designed a mattress that we could guarantee for ten thousand years or the second coming, whichever happens first. Of course, it was a very firm mattress because it was made of solid one inch steel plates - that's all - no cover, no cushioning materials - just solid steel.

It was really just as comfortable as most of these This-A-Pedic, That-A-Pedic mattresses on the market today. And we had a terrific name for it - the "Steel-O-Pedic." The big problem was cost, not for the mattress, but to rebuild your bedroom floor to support its weight.

So we just decided to keep making a good firm, Comfortable mattress because we think that is what most people really want.

Just call Mitzi Miss Moneybags

by Vernon Scott

If you were to ask which glamor girl earns the most money these days; chances are a movie or television star would come to mind:

Elizabeth Taylor, Mary Tyler Moore, Carol Burnett. Perhaps Cher or Ann-Margret or maybe Raquel Welch.

No records are kept on that sort of data. Perhaps only the Internal Revenue Service knows for sure.

But a good bet would be Mitzi Gaynor.

She never fails to bring in considerably more than $1 million a year on her concerts alone. Then there are stands in Las Vegas, Reno and Tahoe which fill the coffers. Add to this her annual television special and the leggy beauty is a favorite for the Miss Moneybags title.

Mitzi has been married to businessman-producer Jack Bean for more than 20 years. He acts as her agent and personal manager; thereby saving at least 20 per cent of Mitzi's earnings.

She has no coterie of hangers-on either. Only her hair dresser travels with Mitzi on the road. Bean, a handsome, personable Irishman, drives a hard and profitable bargain. He is responsible in large part for his wife's success and enormous earnings.

Jack set Mitzi's seventh special, titled "Mitzi . . . Roarin' in the 20s," which airs at 8 p.m. Sunday on CBS.

She's stuck on a three-dot kick. Last year it was "Mitzi . . . 100 Guys." The year before it was "Mitzi . . . The First Time."

"We try to come up with a theme for each special" Mitzi explained. "This year we bring back the old dances of the 20's - the Charleston, Black Bottom, Snake Hips, Tango and Sugar Blues among others.

"I never appear on regular musical series because it would detract from the specialness of my own shows. It's easy to become overexposed. I like to make my musicals an event.

"Anyhow, if you are a guest on a weekly variety show everything is done so fast you don't have a chance to do your best work. It's not worth it."

Mitzi clearly is very special wherever she goes. Twenty weeks a year are devoted to one-week concerts in 20 different cities and she fills the halls to overloading.

"Jack finds the best and largest theaters or arenas in each city," she said. "The average capacity is 3,200. In St. Louis I play to 12,000 people a night.

"The best part is I only do one show an evening. I'm through by 11 o'clock. Who needs movies, getting up at 5 a.m. and worrying about bad reviews? This way I do my own thing and love every minute of it."

Mitzi had done a dozen movies before films fell on hard times. It was Jack who decided she should hit the road with her own show.

"He told me there was no point in waiting around for the telephone to ring," she said. "He wanted me to stand on my own two feet and not have to rely on anyone else.

"Now my TV shows are almost like making a musical movie. Our sponsor pays a half-million dollars for the show; and we own it and sell it abroad. I spend six weeks rehearsing. And in this show there are 20 different numbers."

Mitzi's television productions are not repeated on her concert shows. She spends months preparing for her 20 weeks on the road.

"I get 10 weeks to myself every year," she said, smiling. "I just collapse at home, lie around the pool and go to the beach. I catch up on entertaining my friends at dinner. I keep physically fit by exercising three times a week.

"But I thrive on work. I can't think of anything I'd rather do."

Shelby Lyman on chess

After 20-year-old Bill Koch won a surprise silver medal in a Winter Olympics long distance skiing event, he described the discomfort that normally accompanied such exertions. Mental factors decided the winner among performers of the same physical ability, he said.

Michael Botvinnik, the most successful chessplayer of all during the last 40 years, would agree. This Russian engineer was World Champion in 13 years of the 15 year period 1948-1963. Since his reign, not one of four successive title-holders has had a significant tenure. Though the new champion, Anatoly Karpov, Bobby Fischer's successor, may be the first exception.

It is interesting that young Karpov, an incomparable fighter on the chessboard himself, confesses a debt to the older grandmaster. "He (Botvinnik) made me aware of the seriousness of chess and of the fact that even the most talented of players could not go far without diligent and painstaking work."

Now Botvinnik has new proteges. One of them, 12-year-old Harry Kasparov, has recently won the U.S.S.R. chess championship for teenagers! Another of his pupils finished third.

What secrets of will and fighting spirit has the ex-World Champion passed on to these youth? Will Botvannik now dominate world chess by proxy?

Hint and explanation for Beginner's Corner: The black queen and king are on a dangerous diagonal which is blocked only by a black knight.

An international tournament is often a boon for local masters who get a rare opportunity to play some of the world's better players.

For some strange reason some people would rather buy a guarantee than a mattress - or any other product, for that matter. That's why most of the big manufacturers come out with these fancy guarantees designed to look like a Federal War Bond and filled with oodles of fine print that takes a battery of legal experts to figure out.
